LaDUKE, WINONA (White Earth Ojibwe/Jewish)
(environmentalist; economist; writer, activist)

Born in Los Angeles, Calif. in 1959 and raised in Ashland, Oreg. Education: Harvard University, BA (Economics); Antioch University, MA (Community Economic Development), 1982. Affiliation & Address: Founder, White Earth Land Recovery Project, White Earth Reservation, Hwy. 224, P.O. Box 418, White Earth, MN 56591 (218) 983-3285. She founded the Recovery Project in 1989 with a $20,000 human-rights award from Reebok. Other professional post: President, Indigenous Women's Network, Lake Elmo, MN. While working as a principal at the high school, LaDuke became an activist. In 1985 she helped found the Indigenous Women's Network. She worked with Women of All Red Nations to publicize American forced sterilization of Native American women. Next she became involved in the struggle to recover lands for the Anishinaabe. An 1867 treaty with the United States provided a territory of more than 860,000 acres for the White Earth Indian Reservation. Under the Nelson Act of 1889, an attempt to have the Anishinaabe assimilate by adopting a European-American model of subsistence farming, communal tribal land was allotted to individual households. The US classified any excess land as surplus, allowing it to be sold to non-natives. In addition, many Anishinaabe sold their land individually over the years; these factors caused the tribe to lose control of most of its land. By the mid-20th century, the tribe held only one-tenth of the land in its reservation.<sup>[9]</sup> In 1989, LaDuke founded the White Earth Land Recovery Project (WELRP) in Minnesota with the proceeds of a human rights award from Reebok. The goal is to buy back land in the reservation that non-Natives bought and to create enterprises that provide work to Anishinaabe. By 2000, the foundation had bought 1,200 acres, which it held in a conservation trust for eventual cession to the tribe. WELRP is also working to reforest the lands and revive cultivation of wild rice, long a traditional food. It markets that and other traditional products, including hominny, jam, buffalo sausage, and other products. It has started an Ojibwe language program, a herd of buffalo, and a wind-energy project. LaDuke is also executive director of Honor the Earth, an organization she co-founded with the non-Native folk-rock duo the Indigo Girls in 1993. The organization's mission is: to create awareness and support for Native environmental issues and to develop needed financial and political resources for the survival of sustainable Native communities. Honor the Earth develops these resources by using music, the arts, the media, and Indigenous wisdom to ask people to recognize our joint dependency on the Earth and be a voice for those not heard. The Evergreen State College class of 2014 chose LaDuke to be a keynote speaker. She delivered her address at the school's graduation on June 13, 2014. In 2016, LaDuke was involved in the Dakota Access Pipeline protests, participating at the resistance camps in North Dakota and speaking to the media on the issue. At the July 2019 National Audubon Convention in Milwaukee, LaDuke gave the keynote address with updates on efforts to stop the Sandpiper pipeline, other pipelines, and other projects near Ojibwe waters and through the Leech Lake Reservation. She urged everyone to be water protectors and stand up for their rights. Past professional post: Spoke before the 1977 U.N. NGO Conference on Discrimination Against Indigenous Populations, in Geneva, Switzerland in 1977; Ran for Vice President of the U.S. with Ralph Nader on the Green Party in 1996. Interests: She has quietly been buying back reservation land owned by non-Indians. The land is held in a conservation trust by the project, with the eventual goal of ceding the property to the tribal government. Winona supervises maple sugar and wild-rice processing operations, a stable of horses, an Anishinaabe language program, a wind-energy project, and a herd of buffalo. She is a devotee of coffee and imports beans harvested by peasants in Mexico. Winona is planning the next economy. "Hemp is a cornerstone of a post petroleum economy and needs to be reintegrated into rural farming, particularly Indigenous farming," says Winona who is poised to elevate her Hemp and Heritage Farm (Website: www.winonahemp.com) 40 acres, located near the White Earth Reservation in Northern Minnesota, is working with the Anishinaabe Agricultural Institute to build a new locally-grown economy based on food, energy, and fiber through a new hemp production facility on LaDuke's own independent land adjacent to nearby tribal lands.

Born and raised on the Blackfeet Reservation in Mont. Education: BA (Physics) PhD (Environmental History). Affiliation & Address: Associate Professor of Environmental Studies, University of Montana, 32 Campus Dr., Missoula, MT 59812. Website: www.rosalynlapier.com. Email: SaokioHeritage@gmail.com. Rosalyn studies the intersection of traditional ecological knowledge (TEK) learned from elders and the academic study of environmental history. Her longtime passions include the revitalization of Indigenous languages and traditional ecological knowledge. Other professional post: Founder, Saokio Heritage. A community-based organization created by Blackfeet women, which serves to educate and advocate for the revitalization of Blackfeet (Amskapi Piikani) traditional knowledge in a modern context. Our mission is to "Honor Our Ancestors Knowledge" by breathing new life into our traditional knowledge and language. The Blackfeet (Amskapi Piikani) once called themselves the Saokio-tapi or the prairie people. Saokio Heritage selected our name to celebrate our "prairie" heritage. (Saokio is pronounced like Tokyo.) Ten Years of Community Action. Saokio Heritage was founded in 2008 in collaboration with Piegan Institute and the late Darrell Robes Kipp on the Blackfeet reservation in Montana. In the past 10 years we have worked on various projects to revitalize Blackfeet traditional knowledge and language. We work closely with elders in our community. Under their guidance we share their traditional knowledge within Blackfeet territory through presentations and workshops and on social media we share with those who live outside of our traditional territory. The recent project on Traditional Foods and Food Sovereignty was conducted with generous support from the First Nations Development Institute. Published works: Blackfeet Language Lexicon, several book chapters, academic journal articles and dozens of general audience articles and commentaries. She is currently working on her third book, "Plants That Purify: The Natural and Supernatural History of Smudging." Awards, honors: 2018 George M. LOCKLEAR, ARLINDA (Lumbee) 1951-
(professor of law)

Born September 9, 1951, at Fort Bragg, N.C. Education: Duke University School of Law, JD, 1976. Locklear holds honorary doctorates from The State University of New York at Oneonta (1990), North Carolina State University (2007) and The College of Charleston (2012), her alma mater. She began her career as an attorney at the Native American Rights Fund in Boulder, Co., and later transferred to the Washington D.C. office, serving as directing attorney.

Arlinda has spent her career in Washington, D.C., working for American Indian rights. Among the tribes that Locklear has advocated for is her own Lumbee Tribe of North Carolina. She joined the Native American Rights Fund as a staff attorney at the Boulder, Colorado office in 1976. Then, in 1982, she became directing attorney of the Native American Rights Fund's Washington office. From 1988 to 2011, she represented the tribe's effort to win federal recognition. Locklear was described in American Bar Association publication as "a pioneering attorney in Native American law." In 1984, she became the first Native American woman to appear before the U.S. Supreme Court. As lead counsel in two cases, Locklear prepared the brief and presented the oral argument to the nation's highest court. In 1984, she successfully challenged South Dakota's authority to prosecute a member of the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe for on-reservation conduct in Solem v. Bartlett. In 1985, Locklear represented the tribe in Oneida Indian Nation v. County of Oneida, in which she argued that tribes have a federal common law right to sue for possession of tribal lands taken in violation of federal law. The Oneida case is the seminal case upon which all other land claims litigation have since been based. In addition to her significant litigation experience, Locklear is a nationally recognized expert in the area of federal recognition of Indian tribes. She is well-versed in the legislative process as well, having successfully represented the Fort McDowell Yavapai Nation in the settlement of its water rights. Awards, honors: 2008 honor for her contributions to the American Indian community by the Conference of American Indian Women of Proud Nations; recipient of the Julian T. Pierce Award which recognizes an outstanding attorney & advocate of equal justice; recipient of the Margaret Brent Women Lawyers of Achievement Award from the American Bar Association in 2012.

Education: Columbia University, PhD (Art History). Affiliation & Address: Associate Professor & Director, Native American Studies Program, Colgate University, 415 Alumni Hall, Hamilton, NY 13346 (315) 228-7184. E-mail: clorenz@colgate.edu. From Fall 1987 through Fall 2014, she served in various curatorial capacities in the Longyear Museum of Anthropology at Colgate, including Senior Curator from 2005-2014, while also teaching courses in her areas of expertise – Native American, Pre-Columbian, African, & Oceanic art primarily. Carol Ann has been the faculty mentor to the Native American Student Association since 2000, and has organized the annual Native

American Arts and Culture Festival at Colgate since 2001. Research interests include the art and culture of Africa and the indigenous Americas, Southwest and Northeast Native American art, Haudenosaunee art & artists, Indigenous textiles and pottery. Lorenz currently teaches Native Art of North America, Art and Architecture of the Ancient Americas, Contemporary Issues in Native American Art, and Art of Africa. Because of the cultural content & approaches used in her courses, most are cross-listed in Anthropology and Art History, as well as in relevant multi-disciplinary programs, including Native American Studies, African Studies, and Latin American Studies. During her twenty-seven years of curatorship at Colgate, Lorenz researched and organized original exhibitions on a wide variety of topics, including eighty-one in the Longyear Museum gallery, twenty-five elsewhere on the Colgate campus, and another dozen that were shown in various museums and university galleries including the Munson-Williams-Proctor Arts Institute, Edith Barrett Gallery at Utica College, Rome Art and Community Center, Karpeles Museum in Buffalo, and Stone Quarry Hill Art Park in Cazenovia. For many of the exhibitions, Lorenz organized programming of various sorts, including lectures, performances, and symposia. Lorenz also developed the collections of the Longyear Museum, adding thousands of Native American & African objects that have given the museum known standing as a center for indigenous art in Central New York. Lorenz has authored or edited numerous exhibition catalogs & brochures in association with these exhibitions, as well as having contributed to journals & anthologies. Creation: Haudenosaunee Contemporary Art and Traditional Stories (2004) and African Shapes of the Sacred: Yoruba Religious Art (2006). Edited catalogs include Birds and Beast in Beads: 150 Years of Iroquois Beadwork (2011) and One Day, One Woman, One Child: The Holocaust in the Art of Gabriella Nikolic (2013). She has given lectures at national conferences as well as public, gallery, docent training, and class lectures. Awards, honors: Received the ALANA Cultural Center faculty Award in 2014.

MARTINEZ, CODY J. (Kumeyaay Diegueno)
(tribal chairperson)

Born and raised on the Sycuan Indian Reservation Affiliation & Address: Chairperson, Sycuan Band of Kumeyaay Diegueno, 5459 Sycuan Rd., El Cajon, CA 92019 (619) 445-6002. Prior to his election as Chairperson, Cody worked for the tribal community development department. He played an instrumental role in developing new and improved infrastructure for the residents of the reservation by guiding an $18 million capital project and securing federal grant funds. With conservation and the protection of natural resources being close to his heart, He helped create a first-in-the-nation Natural Resource Management Plan for nearly 1500 acres of land acquired by the Sycuan Band. Through this plan, Sycuan entered into unique and one-of-a-kind partnerships with the County of San Diego, US Fish and Wildlife Service, and the state of California to preserve and protect sensitive wildlife habitat while ensuring the tribe's future stability by providing room for future economic development & protection of cultural & archaeological resources. Chairperson Martinez also served as Tribal Treasurer from 2007-2010. Prior to his service on the tribal council as Treasurer, Cody served on the Sycuan Gaming Commission. As the primary regulator of the gaming operations, Cody helped ensure strict compliance with tribal ordinances, the tribal-state compact and federal rules and regulations. Protecting the assets of the tribe while preserving the integrity of the gaming experience for customers was always front and center. Martinez is a fourth generation descendent of Soloman Paipa, an original allottee when the Sycuan reservation was established in 1875.

MARUBBIO, ELISE
(professor of American Indian studies)

Education: B.F.A., Cleveland Institute of Art; M.A., University of Arizona—American Indian Studies; Ph.D., University of Arizona—Comparative Cultural and Literary Studies. Elise received her B.F.A. in photography from the Cleveland Institute of Art. She worked as a photographer in Cleveland before moving to Tucson to study American Indian Studies at the University of Arizona. She then combined her M.A. in Native American Literature with her passion for art by pursuing a Ph.D. in Cultural Studies with a focus on the issues of race in film and media, with particular attention to the representation of Native Americans in American popular culture and Hollywood cinema. Affiliation & Address: Professor of American Indian Studies, Augsburg College, 2211 Riverside Ave. S., Memorial Hall 215, CB 115, Minneapolis, MN 55454 (612) 330-1523; E-mail: marubbio@augsborg.edu As a settler-nation scholar of Indigenous and cultural studies with a focus on Indigenous issues, she came to Augsburg in 2003 because it is one of the few liberal arts colleges in the country with American Indian Studies department. According to Marubbio, two key things make Augsburg a great place to come for American Indian Studies: The program's dynamic combination of interdisciplinary study and involvement with the community; and Augsburg's location in the city. Her courses embrace this. Her students have opportunities to interact with local Native American writers, filmmakers, artists, community action groups and organizations. They take part in day trips to various communities, galleries, and historical sites. She also leads global travel seminars focused on Indigenous issues to Latin America, including Guatemala, Mexico, and Bolivia. Not only is Augsburg the only liberal arts college to offer a variety of Native American film courses, it also has a Native American film series. Dr. Marubbio started the Augsburg Native American Film Series in 2003 as an extension of her work in American Indian Studies and her love of the arts. She visualizes the series as a project committed to affecting the world through artistic collaboration and powered by a belief in the film to inform, affect, and stimulate vastly different groups of people. The festival's goals include the following: To offer a regional venue for Native American filmmakers to present their films and to engage other communities in dialogue about the films, the process of working as a Native American filmmaker, and the politics of ethnic-identified film making; To build a collaborative relationship with the local Native American community that honors the rich tradition of Native American film in Minneapolis; To provide an interactive environment within which students and community participants critically engage with the tough issues raised by many Native filmmakers about America's history, our contemporary culture, and social justice; To provide reservation communities with access to films by and about Native peoples. Dr. Marubbio's areas of research in Indigenous film grew out of her explorations into how particular mainstream media images reflect the social, political, and moral attitudes towards Native Americans, interracial relationships, and the national identity of the cultural moment in which they are reproduced. As a group, media images of Native Americans and specifically Native women illustrate an ongoing ambivalence toward race and the colonial history of the United States. Thus, one branch of Dr. Marubbio's work spans the decades from the 1910s through the present, tracing these particular themes through filmic components such as stereotypes, editing, scene sequencing, narrative point-of-view, etc. This research fuels her growing interest in the aesthetics of race and the interconnections of race and power with issues of art, representation, and nationalism. It is also the subject of a number of her published essays and her book Killing the Indian Maiden: Images of Native American Women in Film (2006, University Press of Kentucky), which won the Peter C. Rollins Annual Book Award in 2006 and the American Library Association Award in 2007. Another branch of Dr. Marubbio's work expands from the first to focus on Indigenous film and Native women filmmakers; in particular, she is intrigued by the choices made by independent Indigenous filmmakers, the stories they tell, the style that they use to document Indigenous issues, and the approach to cinematic sovereignty that their work as a group suggests. She is currently exploring the ways in which Indigenous media sovereignty move across cinematic approaches and global audiences from tribal/community to pan-tribal, pan-Indian, and pan-cultural arenas. This has led to a third area of research and publishing on de-colonialist pedagogical and collaborative work practices designed for promoting cross-cultural teaching and research that centers Indigenous media, methodology, and theory as equal to and complimentary with western models. Dr. Marubbio's co-edited project with Dr. Eric L. Buffalohead, Native Americans on Film: Conversations, Teaching, and Theory (University Press of Kentucky, 2012), her current edited project with Dr. Tom Holm and Dr. Steve Pavlik, Native Apparitions: Critical Perspectives on Hollywood's Indians (U of Arizona Press, 2017), two guest editions for Post Script: Essays in Film and the Humanities on Indigenous film and filmmakers, and her essays and interviews included in these projects engage this agenda.

McDONOUGH, KELY (White Earth Anishinaabe & Irish descent)
(associate professor of Native American & Indigenous studies)

Education: University of Minnesota, PhD. Affiliation & Address: Associate Professor of Native American & Indigenous Studies, 305 E. 23rd St., Stop B3700, Austin, TX 78712 (512) 232-3555; E-mail: kelly.mcdonough@austin.utexas.edu. Interests: Critical Indigenous Studies; Latin American Literatures and Native Intellectual Histories, with emphasis on Mexico from Spanish colonialism to the present; Ethnohistory (Nahuatl Studies); Indigenous Science, Technology, and Society; Digital Humanities. "In my first book, The Learned Ones: Nahua Intellectuals in Postconquest Mexico (University of Arizona Press, First Peoples: New Directions in Indigenous Studies), I presented case studies drawn from the past 500 years to show various forms of Nahua intellectual production, systematically debunking the erroneous racialized discourse that refused to see Nahuas as intellectuals. In my current book project Indigenous Science and Technologies of Mexico Past and Present: Nahuas and the World Around Them, I shift this conversation to the realm of science and technologies. Academics and the general public alike tend to picture Indigenous peoples as possessing quasi-mystical "elder knowledges," but rarely think of them in terms of rigorous research and problem solving. Science and technology are thought to be the purview of the West, while "practices" and "habitus"—lacking intentionality—belonging to the rest (Norton 2017). In this interdisciplinary study, I place Indigenous peoples squarely within the realm of science and technologies through a series of case studies related Nahua science and natural resource management, and technologies of communication and culture reproduction in colonial and contemporary Mexico. I argue that recognizing and understanding their diverse scientific and technological knowledges should be a priority as we seek creative solutions to increasingly complex problems in our globalized world."

MELLENDEZ, ARLAN D. (Paiute)
(tribal chairperson)

Affiliation & Address: Chairperson (1991-2010; 2015-present), Reno-Sparks Indian Colony, 98 Colony Rd., Reno, NV 89502 (775) 329-2936. E-mail: amelendez@rsic.org. Other professional posts: Chair, Taxation Subcommittee of the National Congress of American Indians; V.P., Inter-Tribal Council of Nevada. First elected to the Tribal Council in 1987, Melendez has served as treasurer and vice-chairman of his tribe. Under his direction, the Colony has maintained a strong and fiscally sound government and has become a very progressive tribe. The RSIC has taken advantage of its strategic location within a metropolitan area to create a viable economic tax base which has allowed the tribe to purchase land and attract business development to the reservation. Under Chairman Melendez's leadership, the RSIC has partnered with the State of Nevada, Washoe County, the cities of Reno and Sparks, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs to put 108 acres into Trust Land. This remarkable collaboration has expanded the RSIC's total land base to over 2,000 acres. The RSIC was established in the early 1900's and formed a federally recognized government in 1935 under the Indian Reorganization Act. Located in Reno, Nev., the RSIC consists of over 1,000 members from three Great Basin Tribes – the Paiute, the Shoshone and the Washo. The reservation lands consist of the original 28 acre residential Colony located in central west Reno and another 1,920 acres in Hungry Valley, which is 19 miles north of the Colony and west of Spanish Springs, Nev., nestled in scenic Eagle Canyon. Nationally, in 2005, Melendez was appointed to a six-year-term on the United States Commission on Civil Rights by Senate Minority Leader Harry Reid. Established as an independent, bipartisan, fact-finding federal agency, the Civil Rights Commission's mission is to champion the development of national civil rights policy and enhance enforcement of federal civil rights laws. This body plays a vital role in advancing civil rights for all Americans. Chairman Melendez received two lifetime achievement awards from the Native American Finance Officers Association (NAFOA) and the National Indian Health Service which publicly honored Chairman Melendez for his significant contributions to their respective national organizations. In July of 2015, he was appointed to serve as treasurer for the National Congress of American Indians (NCAI), which is the oldest, largest and most representative American Indian & Alaska Native organization serving the broad interests of tribal governments and communities. Chairman Melendez currently chairs the taxation subcommittee for the NCAI. In 2010, he was appointed by Governor Brian Sandoval to the Nevada Gaming Policy Committee. Chairman Melendez's term as a volunteer on the local selective service board will expire in June of 2016, after a 20-year commitment. Though Chairman Melendez works on a number of issues, he has a passion for quality health care and has been a strong advocate and voice on the local and national level for improved health care for Native people. Of the many accomplishments, the most rewarding is the RSIC's new health care center, which serves thousands of Native Americans in the Reno-Sparks area. Chairman Melendez also served on the U.S. Health and Human Services' National Tribal Advisory Committee (STAC), directed by Secretary Sylvia Mathews Burwell and currently serves on the Phoenix Area Tribal Health Steering Committee. Today, Chairman Melendez, is a current Board Member of CHIEF, the Christian Hope Indian Eskimo Fellowship, which is a Native Christian outreach organization located in Phoenix. He was also a founding member of the Colony Christian Fellowship Church located on the Reno-Sparks Colony. In addition, Chairman Melendez is the past president of the Inter-Tribal Council of Nevada (ITCN) and has been Western Region Vice-President of NCAI, for three different terms. Awards, honors: Arlan was recently appointed to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights by the Democratic Majority Leader of the U.S. Senate, Harry Reid (NV). Fifth Ave., Suite 700, Anchorage, AK 99501 (907) 258-6377. E-mail: lloyd@sonosky.net. Lloyd joined the firm in 1979 and opened the firm's Alaska offices in 1984. Mr. Miller specializes in appellate and trial litigation, as well as congressional advocacy, for tribal governments, inter-tribal organizations, Native American health and social service providers and Native American-owned profit and non-profit corporations. Mr. Miller's practice involves Indian Self-Determination Act health and social service matters, labor law issues, gaming issues, ICWA matters, environmental issues, and a wide range of additional Indian and general law matters. He regularly assists clients in such diverse matters as government contract negotiations, labor law, fishing & hunting rights, child welfare matters, federal recognition, tribal constitutional law, environmental law, trust land acquisitions, land claims and corporate law. A significant portion of Mr. Miller's career has been devoted to litigation against the federal government on behalf of Tribes and tribal organizations contracting with the United States under the Indian Self-Determination Act, together with related legislative and appropriations work in Congress. Mr. Miller was counsel for the Cherokee Nation and the Shoshone-Paiute Tribes in the leading Supreme Court case setting the Government's liability for contract support cost underpayments, Cherokee Nation v. Leavitt, 543 U.S. 631 (2005). His successes also include the 2012 follow-on victory against the Indian Health Service in Arctic Slope Native Ass'n. v. Sebelius, 133 S. Ct. 22 (2012), on remand ASNA v. Sebelius, 501 Fed. Appx. 957 (Fed. Cir. 2012), and the successful Ramah litigation, Salazar v. Ramah Navajo Chapter, 132 S. Ct. 2181 (2012) (co-counsel to a class of over 600 Tribes and tribal organizations seeking damages against the Bureau of Indian Affairs for contract support cost underpayments). Mr. Miller has led the firm's successes in recovering over $750 million against the Indian Health Service for our tribal clients, and continues to press nationwide class damages against the BIA. More recently, he successfully litigated Southcentral Foundation v. Roubideaux, No. 13-164, Dkt. 77 (D. Alaska Sept 23, 2014) to further enforce tribal contracting rights with the federal government. He was a law clerk to the late James M. Fitzgerald of the United States District Court for the District of Alaska, and for whom the Alaska federal courthouse is named. He has served on the boards of several non-profit organizations & on the Conference Executive Committee for the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. He has also been honored by the National Indian Health Board, the Alaska Legislature and the Healthy Alaska Natives Foundation, all for his work to advance Native American health and tribal self-determination.

MIRON, ROSE
(Indian center director)

Education: University of Minnesota, BA (History), PhD (American Studies). Affiliation & Address: Director (2019-present), D'Arcy McNickle Center for American Indian and Indigenous Studies, The Newberry Library, 60 West Walton St., Chicago, IL 60610 (312) 255-3569. E-mail: mironr@newberry.org Her research explores Indigenous interventions in public history within the Northeast and the Great Lakes regions, as well as American Indian nationalism and activism in the twentieth century. She is currently working on a manuscript project tentatively titled "Indigenous Archival Activism: Narrating Nationalism in the Mohican Tribal Archive and Beyond." The project is based on nine years of close collaboration with the Stockbridge-Munsee Mohican Nation and explores how Native people use archives to change the way Indigenous history is accessed and produced. Past professional posts: National Native American Boarding School Healing Coalition in Minneapolis (2018-19) where she worked closely with tribal leaders to develop programs aimed at further understanding, addressing, and raising awareness about the inter-generational trauma resulting from experiences at U.S. Indian boarding schools. These schools were a central part of U.S. policy in the 19th and 20th centuries that sought to assimilate Native peoples into American society by removing Native children from their tribal communities and placing them in institutions where they were punished for speaking their Native languages or practicing their traditions and cultures. Dr. Miron helped plan and run the first national conference on U.S. Indian boarding schools, completed planning and sought funding for a major digital archive, and launched a year-long webinar series to reach new audiences. Dr. Miron's scholarly work focused on how Native peoples use tribal archives to claim authority over the creation, assembly, and use of their historical materials. Centering on the Mohican Nation of Wisconsin, Dr. Miron shows how Native activism through the creation of archives enables tribal members to craft their own historical narratives and to intervene in public representations of their history. For decades, the McNickle Center has been at the forefront of promoting research in Indigenous Studies and engaging Native communities, and we look forward to that work continuing under Dr. Miron's leadership." While at the University of Minnesota, Dr. Miron co-curated an exhibit with Professor Brenda Child and the Red Lake Ojibwe Nation and worked on another digital history project that called attention to the difficult history of Fort Snelling, the site of a U.S. concentration camp that held Dakota prisoners after the 1862 U.S. Dakota War. In her public-facing work, Dr. Miron has emphasized amplifying the voices of Native Americans and confronting historical violence. Dr. Miron will build on the positive work of McNickle Center Interim Director Susan-Sleeper Smith, Professor of History at Michigan State University, who accomplished a great deal in the past 10 months, including launching the First Nations Film and Video Festival, expanding the Newberry's support for the Chicago American Indian Community Collaborative, and organizing the American Indian Seminar at the Newberry.

Education: Georgetown University, BA (Justice and Peace studies), 2005; Tulane Law School, JD, 2008. Affiliation & Address: Partner, Pipestem Law, 1333 New Hampshire Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20036 (202) 407-0591. E-mail: mnagle@pipestemlaw.com. Mary Kathryn joined Pipestem Law in 2015 from Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan in New York City, where she specialized in complex commercial litigation related to structured finance, bankruptcy, and federal qui tam actions. She has drafted numerous appellate briefs in federal courts, including federal appellate courts and the United States Supreme Court. In 2013, she represented seventeen current and former Members of Congress in an amicus brief submitted in Adoptive Couple v. Baby Girl (the "Baby Veronica case"), before the United States Supreme Court. This amicus brief explained the legislative history of the Indian Child Welfare Act ("ICWA") and argued why the ICWA constitutes an exercise of Congress's constitutional authority under the Indian Commerce Clause. Mary Kathryn has significant experience in briefing other issues of constitutional law related to federal Indian law, as well as cases that implicate statutory rights under Indian rights laws such as the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act ("NAGPRA"). One of her assets is the depth of her trial work, as she has prepared for and litigated cases in the New York Supreme Court, United States Bankruptcy Court, and federal district courts across the country. Prior to her work in the private sector, Mary Kathryn clerked for Judge Joseph Bataillon and Judge Laurie Smith Camp of the United States District Court, District of Nebraska, and then subsequently clerked for Judge Fortunato P. Benavides of the United States Court of Appeals, Fifth Circuit. Mary Kathryn studied law at Tulane Law School, where she graduated summa cum laude and was the recipient of the Judge John Minor Wisdom Award. Her law review articles have been published in five different journals, including the Tulane Law Review and Tulsa Law Review. She is a frequent speaker at law schools and symposia on issues related to restoration of tribal sovereignty, tribal self-determination, Indian civil and constitutional rights, and safety of Native Women. She also represents the National Indigenous Women's Resource Center (NIWRC) in support of the NIWRC's work to end violence against Native Women. Mary Kathryn is an accomplished playwright who has written and produced several plays relating to Indians and the law, including Waaxe's Law, Manahatta, My Father's Bones (with Suzan Shown Harjo), Miss Lead, Fairly Traceable, and Sliver of a Full Moon.

professional posts: Touring Artist, Western States Arts Foundation, 1991-93; Certified Secondary teacher in Graphic Communications, State of Arizona; co-founder of the ethnic jazz ensemble Jackalope. Jackalope has released two albums, Jackalope and Weavings. History: In 1973, after earlier music studies on the classical trumpet at Northern Arizona University, Nakai began playing the wooden Native American flute. He learned the traditional flute melodies and music forms of the Plains and Woodlands Indians and soon began to adapt these ideas to fit a style of his own. Nakai has recorded 12 albums for Canyon Records, including Earth Spirit, Canyon Trilogy, Carry the Gift, and most recently, Spirit Horses, a classically-oriented release featuring a concerto written for Nakai's Native American flute and chamber ensemble. Spirit Horses was chosen by Pulse music magazine as one of the top albums of 1991. Nakai's albums of solo flute music on the Canyon Records label include Changes, Journeys, Earth Spirit and Canyon Trilogy. On Cycles, Nakai uses the traditional flute with synthesizer accompaniment to create a dramatic work that serves as the music track for the multimedia presentation "Our Voices, Our Land" at The Heard Museum in Phoenix, AZ. Nakai has brought the Native American flute, traditionally a solo instrument used for courting and healing, into the realm of ensemble performance. In March 1993, he will appear as a soloist with the Phoenix Symphony in the world premiere of a new concerto for the cedar flute and orchestra composed by James DeMars. He has written & performed scores for film and TV, including selections for WGBH-TV, the National Park Service, the National Geographic Society, Fox TV, as well as many commercial productions. In October 1988, the Martha Graham Dance Co. premiered a dance set to five selections from nakai's album, Cycles. Since 1990, Nakai has collaborated and toured with pianist Peter Kater. Together they've recorded two albums, "Natives and Migration." Nakai continues to tour extensively throughout the U.S., Canada, Europe and Japan, performing and lecturing on Native American culture and philosophy. Military service: U.S. Navy, 1966-71 (E-4, Radioman). Community activities: Panelist, The National Endowment for the Arts, Tucson Community Foundation, Phoenix Arts Commission; director, Arts Genesis, Arizona Ethno-botanical Research Association. Memberships: Cheyenne-Arapaho Gourd Society; National Flute Association; Blue Star Society. Awards, honors: Arizona State Governor's Arts Award, 1992, for individual achievement; has received two gold records and numerous Grammy nominations; inducted into the Arizona Music and Entertainment Hall of Fame, 2005. Interests: "While I am engaged in the study of indigenous North American Native culture and music, my goals will include but are not limited to the following: research the historical traditions and technology of Native American music and oral traditions; compose, arrange and perform new music for the Native American flute; demonstrate and lecture on aboriginal and contemporary Native American culture, music, spirituality and philosophies of self-awareness and survival, and most importantly, to express ideas, observations, and thoughts in a positive, non-rhetorical and unbiased manner, to educate rather than castigate. My objective is to communicate a perspective based upon the future oriented and on-going, living oral traditions of the Dine' and other aboriginal native peoples of North America that are uncoached in romantic and/or stereotypical idealism. I will utilize contemporary teaching methods to develop a creative learning atmosphere in which to share awareness." Nakai, while cognizant of the traditional use of the flute as a solo instrument, began finding new settings for it, especially in the genres of jazz & classical. He founded the ethnic jazz ensemble, the R. Carlos Nakai Quartet, to explore the intersection of ethnic and jazz idioms. Published Albums: "Changes" (Canyon Records, 1983); "Cycles" (Canyon Records, 1985); Canyon Trilogy & Earth Spirit; "Ancestral Voices" (Canyon Records, 1994) - won 1994 Best Traditional Folk Album; "Inner Voices and Inside Monument Valley" (Canyon Records) - 2000 Best New Age Album; "In a Distant Place" -2001 Best New Age Album; "Fourth World" - 2002 Best New Age Album; "Sanctuary" - 2003 Best Native American Album; and "People of the Peace" - 2004 Best New Age Album; @ 30 other albums. Published book: "The Art of the Native American Flute," with composer James DeMars - a guide to performing the traditional cedar flute.

NELSON, JEFFREY
(attorney; Indian law)

Education: University of Michigan, School of natural Resources and Environment, BS, 1994; University of Michigan Law School, JD, 1997; Georgetown University Law Center, LLM (Advocacy), 1999. Affiliation & Address: Managing Attorney (2020-present), Indian Law Group, Maglio Christopher & Toale Law Firm, 1015 15th St., NW Suite 1125, Washington, DC 20005 (888) 952-5242. Website: www.mclaw.com. Jeffrey manages the Indian Law Group at mclaw, bringing over 20 years of experience working in Washington, DC on Indian law and litigation matters, including as a Senior Attorney at the NIGC and as an Assistant Solicitor at the DOI. He now represents tribes across the country on Indian gaming and tribal governance matters. He also serves as the Assistant Attorney General for the United Keetoowah Band of Cherokee Indians in Oklahoma. Previously, Mr. Nelson worked on complex litigation at a large plaintiff-side law firm, where he was appointed as a Special Assistant Attorney General for the State of Montana in that State's opioid litigation. At the beginning of his legal career, Jeff was an environmental and Indian law lawyer in one of the nation's largest law firms, during which time he served as a Trustee for the Mattaponi Tribe of Virginia. Past professional posts: Managing Attorney (2019-20), Oakwood Law, LLC, Rockville, MD 20852 (202) 746-6149. Website: www.oakwoodlawllc.com. Jeffrey opened Oakwood Law to provide representation to tribes, small businesses, and other organizations at a fraction of the cost that the big firms once charged for his time. To this new endeavor, he brought his past experience as a complex case litigator in one of the nation's largest plaintiff law firms, an Indian gaming regulator at the National Indian Gaming Commission, an environmental lawyer in the largest law firm based in Washington DC, and an Assistant Solicitor in the Department of the Interior's Office of the Solicitor. Moreover, Jeff is able to balance keen professionalism and strong advocacy with his warmhearted personality, treating each client like part of the Oakwood family. Litigation Associate, Motley Rice, Washington, DC, 2017-19; Staff Attorney, Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC, Washington, DC, 2014-17; Counsel, Kani & Katzen, PLLC, 2012-14; Department of the Interior, Office of the Solicitor, Senior Attorney, 2010-11, Assistant Solicitor, Branch of General Indian Legal Activities, Division of Indian Affairs, 2011-12; Senior Attorney, National Indian Gaming Commission, 2005-10; Associate, Hogan & Hartson LLP, 1999-2005. Jeffrey was counsel for the Tribal Internet Gaming Alliance (TIGA). He also represented tribes before the National Indian Gaming Commission, the Department of the Interior, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Department of Justice. He supervised a branch of attorneys in the Solicitor's Office Division of Indian Affairs. He and the attorneys in his branch provided legal advice and litigation support on a wide variety of Indian programs, including Indian Gaming, Indian Education, Self-Governance Compacts, Self-Determination Contracts, Federal Acknowledgment, Law Enforcement, Treaty Rights and Tribal Governance. Jeffrey also was responsible for writing Indian land gaming eligibility determinations and reviewing Class III Tribal-State Gaming Compacts and Revenue Allocation Plans for the Assistant Secretary's approval decisions. As a Senior Attorney for the National Indian Gaming Commission, Jeffrey researched and wrote Indian land gaming eligibility decisions, reviewed tribal gaming ordinances and management contracts for the Chairman's approval decisions, and determined whether gaming-related contracts triggered management contract treatment under IGRA. He also assisted the Portland and Oklahoma Regions of the NIGC with their compliance & enforcement initiatives, conducted administrative and federal litigation, and provided technical advice & training to tribal leaders, tribal gaming commissions and casino managers. Jeffrey was an associate in the Environmental Practice Group at Hogan & Hartson LLP (now, Hogan Lovells). He co-founded the Native Peoples Working Group and represented tribes with environmental, fishing rights and cultural resource issues. He also represented clients with issues under federal environmental statutes, including the National Environmental Policy Act, the National Historic Preservation Act, Clean Air Act, Clean Water Act, and the Endangered Species Act.

Chris is a lifetime educator. Chris's education career began immediately after high school as a substitute teacher during his time as an undergraduate at Dartmouth College. He's a long time member of the Mystic River singers, an internationally acclaimed and award-winning inter-tribal pow wow drum group based out of Connecticut. For over two decades, Chris devoted much of his time to Mystic River travelling all over the US and Canada singing at community pow wows and spending time in those communities learning various Native musics and taking part in community and family events. Chris earned an interdisciplinary Bachelor of General Studies degree from the University of Connecticut which propelled him back to educating as a profession. He served for six years as the Education Supervisor for the Mashantucket Pequot Museum and Research Center where his team led the group experience for over 70,000 guests. Out of the museum, Chris and his museum colleagues co-founded the Akomawt Educational Initiative in response to observations of the public school system and the lack of representation of Native history and social studies. Akomawt's work goes beyond museum walls and into all areas of education, helping institutions incorporate Native content appropriately into their material. In a short time, Akomawt began taking on clients such as the Haffenreffer Museum, Norman B. Leventhal Map and Education Center and the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston among others. Akomawt's independent museum consultation work has produced tremendous results and changed the way museums are operating in the Northeast. Chris spearheaded Akomawt's collaboration with the Leventhal Map Center's highly acclaimed America Transformed: Mapping the 19th Century exhibit bringing Native perspectives to the story, which earned him the recognition of the New England Museum Association with a 2019 Excellence Award. In October of 2019, Akomawt officially partnered with the MFA Boston to celebrate their inaugural Indigenous People's Day, which attracted more than 5,000 guests. Chris combines his music and education disciplines and often makes presentations that educate but also entertain. Along with his work in education, Chris has also appeared in feature films and was the Senior Adviser on the Emmy winning documentary Dawnland chronicling the historic first-ever government-sanctioned Truth and Reconciliation Commission in the State of Maine.

NUNEZ, JACQUE TAHUKA (Acjachemen Nation)
(keynote Native American speaker; master storyteller, teacher, singer, director, writer, cultural consultant)

Education: University of Southern California & Hope University, BA (Speech Communications & Rhetoric, 1980). Affiliation & Address: Keynote Native American Speaker (2007-present), 31392 La Matanza St., San Juan Capistrano, CA 92675 (949) 248-2558. E-mail: journestothevast@yahoo.com Journeys to the Past is a California Indian presentation that shows the beauty of our culture and ignites others to discover their own! This unique program takes students on a journey into the lifestyle of the California Indian, in particular the Acjachemen Nation, which flourished in Southern California hundreds of years before the Spanish influx. Jacque shares through stories and songs her people's indigenous tools, instruments, games and clothing. She includes how American Indians preserve their culture today by participating in Intertribal Pow wows. The children view traditional dances and even get the chance to participate. Students leave with a wonderful understanding of "environmentalism" and what it means to be "keepers of the earth." Jacque has made a successful career out of sharing her Acjachemen ancestor's story. She prides herself on preserving and passing her culture along through the oral Native American tradition of storytelling. While attending college at USC, she traveled across the country competing on the National Collegiate Speech Circuit and American Forensic League. She received the Most Outstanding Speaker Award from USC for three years and numerous medals for superior accomplishments, including 1st Place Gold Medal National Speech Competition. She is one of the most requested Artists from the Orange County Performing Arts Center. She has received several esteemed awards, Lois Wright Memorial Award, Outstanding Service Award – Mayor Tom Bradley, Five Jewel Award for Outstanding Achievement, Outstanding Tribal Community Contribution Award and Most Outstanding Teacher Award. Jacque was also selected to be the First Director of the Veteran's Arts Festival and the Assistant Director of Marlton School of Deaf production of "Cats" performed at the Kennedy Center in Washington D.C. Jacque has also been given the opportunity to perform the National Anthem at both the unveiling of new United States Postal Stamps and the Angel's Stadium. She has performed her Journeys to the Past on Stage for large venues such as Disneyland, Kavi Performing Arts Center and Special Arts Festival. While she continues storytelling at schools and large venues she recently taped and performed an original story on PBS Children's Television Show. While creating her original story for PBS she was inspired to create a new series of children's books.

OLSEN, POLLY (Yakama)
(tribal liaison, Burke Museum)

Education: University of Washington, BA (Cultural Anthropology), 1994. Affiliation & Address: Tribal Liaison, Burke Museum, Washington State Museum of Natural History & Culture, Box 353010, University of Washington, Seattle, WA 98195 (206) 543-7907. E-mail: polly@uw.edu. Past professional post: Director, Native American Center of Excellence, University of Washington, School of Medicine, 2001-07; Director (2007-15), Community Relations and Development Core, Indigenous Wellness Research Institute, School of Social Work, University of Washington; Executive Director, Association of American Indian Physicians, 2015-17.

OLSEN, VIVIAN
(tribal attorney)

Affiliation & Address: Tribal Attorney, 117 S. 6th St., St. Marys, KS 66536 (785) 437-2777. In Vivian's experience as an American Indian tribal attorney, she has seen firsthand how the complicated tribal, state and federal law enforcement relationship has led to over-victimization of native people in Kansas. Olsen, the former tribal attorney for the Prairie Band Potawatomi Nation in Kansas, said native people often face questions about tribe authority over their own land. "There is a major misconception that Native Americans have control over all the land, but that is not the case," Olsen said. "Tribal law is one of the most complex and difficult areas of the criminal justice system to navigate." Native people across the country and in all four of Kansas' federally recognized tribes — Prairie Band Pottawatomie Nation, Kickapoo Tribe in Kansas, Iowa Tribe of Kansas and Nebraska, and the Sac and Fox tribe of Missouri in Kansas and Nebraska — have long struggled with the limitation of tribal authority, exposing them to higher rates of incarceration, the potential to be tried twice and higher victimization rates.

Rio Salado Parkway, Suite 710, Tempe, AZ 85281 (480) 921-9296. E-mail: aeolson@rothsteinlaw.com. April's law experience includes a variety of practice areas, including: criminal law, civil litigation, water law and Indian Child Welfare Act matters. Past professional post: Attorney (2006-09), Gila River Indian Community. After law school, April began working for the Gila River Indian Community and served the tribe as both a Prosecutor and an Assistant General Counsel. April left the Community to join the law firm of Rothstein Donatelli LLP where she is now a partner. April's practice is primarily in the field of Indian law, which means she does a wide variety of different things and her work overlaps with other fields including criminal law, labor and employment, civil litigation, dependency law and the ICWA, and guardianships and adoptions. April finds inspiration in the clients and counselors she works with who continue to fight for tribal sovereignty and the rights of indigenous people. She engages in substantial pro bono work and serves on the ASU Indian Legal Program Advisory Committee. April is also a member of the Native American Bar Association of Arizona, the Tribal In-House Counsel Association and the Indian Law Section of the State Bar.

PAVEL, MARY J. (Skokomish)
(attorney; Indian law firm partner)

Education: Dartmouth College, BA, 1989; University of Washington School of Law, JD, 1992. Affiliation & Address: Partner, Sonosky, Chambers, Sachse, Endreson & Perry, LLP, 1425 K St., NW, Suite 600, Washington, DC 20005 (202) 682-0240. E-mail: mpavel@sonosky.com. Mary rejoined the firm in 2015 after serving as Staff Director and Chief Counsel for the United States Senate Committee on Indian Affairs. During her tenure, she served two Chairs: Senator Maria Cantwell (D-WA) and Senator Jon Tester (D-MT). As Staff Director and Chief Counsel, Ms. Pavel directed the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs agenda through the Senate. In this capacity, Ms. Pavel played a vital role in the enactment of the reauthorization of the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA), as well as critical legislation that restored tribal land rights, affirmed tribal water rights, and protected tribal health and veterans programs. Ms. Pavel initially joined the firm in 1992 and became a partner in 1999. She focuses her practice on working with congressional staff and the firm's legislative clients. Her work involves all aspects of legislative practice, including developing legislative strategies, meeting with tribal and congressional delegations and developing testimony. Ms. Pavel has extensive knowledge of the budget & appropriations process and has developed strong relationships with appropriations and other Hill staff. She has worked on some of the largest tribal settlements that Congress has enacted, including the Colville Tribes' Grand Coulee Dam Settlement Act and the Pueblo of Isleta Settlement and Natural Resources Restoration Act. Mary was also the lead lobbyist on the Fort Peck Reservation Rural Water System Act, which authorized the construction and operation of a $193 million domestic water system to provide safe drinking water to the 30,000 residents of the Fort Peck Indian Reservation and surrounding communities. She leads the firm's work on appropriations matters, where she has successfully worked with tribal clients to secure over $100 million in funding for vitally needed projects in their communities including roads, schools, and hospitals. She has also worked with a number of Tribes to address their land issues in Congress, including having land taken into trust for gaming purposes, restoring land to a Tribe because of its religious and cultural significance, and expanding tribal leasing authority. She has also worked on a number of national initiatives including amendments to the Federal Unemployment Tax Act, which secured Tribes parity to be treated as governments under this Act; reauthorization of the Indian Healthcare Improvement Act; the Tribal Law and Order Act, and the Violence Against Women Act. In addition, she actively worked to resist Congressional efforts to tax tribal revenues, abrogate tribal sovereign immunity, and impose State taxes for retail sales on tribal lands.

PERRY, WILLIAM R.
(attorney; Indian law)

Education: Brown University, BA, 1975; Georgetown University Law Center, JD, 1978. Affiliation & Address: Partner, Sonosky, Chambers, Sachse, Endreson & Perry, LLP, 1425 K St., NW, Suite 600, Washington, DC 20005 (202) 682-0240. E-mail: wperry@sonosky.com. Mr. Perry has represented Indian tribes on a broad range of matters for over thirty years. While he has represented many tribes during this time, he takes particular satisfaction in having had the opportunity to serve the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe continuously throughout his legal career. He has handled significant federal and state court litigation, as well as federal administrative appeals, regarding a variety of federal Indian law matters, including jurisdictional disputes, reservation boundary matters, state efforts to tax transactions in Indian country, Public Law 280 disputes, claims for damages for wrongs committed by the federal government, cases arising under the Indian Child Welfare Act, the American Indian Probate Reform Act and many others. Many of the cases he has handled have involved the intersection between Tribal history and Federal Indian law, an area of special emphasis in his practice. Mr. Perry has broad experience regarding tribal gaming under the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (IGRA), including litigation to protect tribal authority to continue gaming in the face of a legal challenge based on a state constitutional amendment that broadly prohibited gaming under state law. He has negotiated compacts and management agreements, developed tribal gaming ordinances, assisted tribes win connection with various gaming investigations and personnel disputes, and advised tribal gaming commissions regarding their regulatory duties. He has addressed matters before the NIGC, including obtaining favorable Indian lands decisions for tribes under section 20 of IGRA. He has worked extensively on Tribal environmental matters, including successfully assisting tribes in securing Treatment as a State status, which enables Tribes to develop and implement their own environmental standards to protect their reservations. He also has substantial expertise on the trust land acquisition process – including both the nuts and bolts of the process and the legal issues associated with the frequent challenges to trust land acquisitions. He has also represented tribes before Congress.

(attorney)

Education: California State University, BA, 1967; Loyola University School of Law, JD, 1974. Affiliation & Address: Partner, Hobbs, Straus, Dean & Walker, LLP, 1903 21st St., 3rd Floor, Sacramento, CA 95811 (510) 280-5135. E-mail: squesenberry@hobbsstrauss.com From his early experience working with Washington tribes, which were asserting their treaty fishing rights in the face of fierce resistance by the State of Washington, Stephen developed a deep commitment to tribal sovereignty and the federally protected rights inherent in that status. Since then, he has represented numerous tribes and individual Indians on a wide range of issues in a practice that has spanned three decades and involved work on Indian reservations in the States of Washington and California. After a long career in Indian legal services, including 15 years as the Director of Litigation for California Indian Legal Services (1985-2000), Stephen entered private practice with the law firm of Karshmer & Associates in 2003, where he continued his representation of tribes. Stephen recently joined Hobbs Straus. Stephen has represented Indian tribal governments and individual Indians in federal agency proceedings and at federal and state trial and appellate court levels. His advocacy has encompassed a broad range of Indian law issues, including tribal licensing and regulatory authority, protection of Native American cultural and sacred sites, eligibility for and allocation of Indian education grant funds, tribal sovereign immunity, tribal and individual Indian immunity from state taxation, restoration of terminated tribes, and protection of federally reserved water and fishing rights. He has extensive experience in the area of legislative advocacy, having drafted and successfully advocated for passage of federal legislation providing for transfer of Bureau of Land Management lands to eight California tribes and for restoration of two terminated California tribes. His experience regarding issues of federal acknowledgment and individual Indian status spans more than two decades, including legal consultant to the Advisory Council on California Indian Policy in submitting its 1997 reports and recommendations to the United States Congress on the unique status problems of the California tribes. He has served as an adjunct professor at Santa Clara University School of Law and the University of San Francisco School of Law, teaching courses and seminars in Federal Indian Law and the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. He has also represented indigenous interests at the United Nations Commission on Human Rights in Geneva and completed the summer course in human rights law at the International Institute of Human Rights in Strasbourg, France.

E-mail: tar37@cornell.edu. "As both a philosopher of education & scholar in American Indian and Indigenous Studies, my research, scholarship and pedagogical efforts center on the intellectual traditions of Indigenous and other minoritized communities. I draw particular attention to the epistemological and ontological dimensions of Indigeneity as it is revealed in literature, visual culture and non-fiction works by Indigenous peoples. More specifically, I theorize the nature of selfhood, ethics, gender, ecology and power from these Indigenous intellectual traditions to chart the alternative social and philosophical imaginaries of Indigenous peoples. Moreover, this work assists in revealing the precise operations of a still operative coloniality in Euro-centric intellectualism and knowledge production in research and academic settings. My scholarship seeks to contribute to philosophical and theoretical discourses developed by Indigenous peoples to advance forms of de-colonial education."

RICHEY, KENT E.

Education: Moorhead State University, BS, 1970; University of Minnesota Law School, JD, 1973. Affiliation & Address: Partner, Faegre Baker Daniels, 2200 Wells Fargo Center, 90 S. Seventh St., Minneapolis, MN 55402 (612) 766-7442. E-mail: kent.richey@faegrebd.com. Kent is one of the nation's leading Indian Country business and finance attorneys. He began this practice in 1994, drawing upon his extensive prior experience as a bond and underwriter's counsel for tax-exempt and taxable governmental financings and, prior to that, his experience as a business lawyer and litigator. With his practice now centered in Indian Country, Kent has represented a variety of clients, including banks, investment banks, broker-dealers, insurance companies, credit enhancers, equipment vendors, casino developers, consultants, managers and Indian tribes and their instrumentalities. More than 90 Indian tribes throughout the country have been involved in Kent's transactions. Relevant financings have taken a variety of forms – including bank loan and credit facilities (both syndicated and non-syndicated), leases (both financing and operating), and the offer and sale of indentured debt securities. Such financings have involved senior debt, subordinated debt, credit enhanced debt, so-called participating or contingent interest debt, and transactions with interest rate protection or swaps.

Not only has Kent been extensively involved in the issuance of new tribal debt, he can also speak authoritatively as to the restructuring of that debt, as a result of representation in connection with a number of defaulted tribal commercial loans and two bond issues presently undergoing restructuring efforts. In connection with his restructuring efforts, Kent has met personally with senior legal and other staff of the National Indian Gaming Commission to explore new approaches that might enable restructurings and restore investor and lender confidence in tribal financings. In the course of his practice, Kent is in almost continuous contact with the National Indian Gaming Commission or the Bureau of Indian Affairs. In the course of this practice, Kent has developed a comprehensive understanding of the various commercial considerations intrinsic in tribal financings, such as the effectiveness of tribal waivers of sovereign immunity, the availability and advisability of various forums for dispute resolution, and the specialized requirements for secured lending within tribal jurisdictions. The specialized interplay of Indian law, commercial law, and in the instances of securities offerings, securities law, is a challenge Kent is able to meet efficiently on a cost-effective basis through his broad practical-based knowledge and experience in Indian country. Furthermore, drawing on his public finance background, he recognizes the critical role tribal governments & their members can play in the negotiation of Indian commercial transactions. Awards, honors: The Best Lawyers in America – Gaming Law, Native American Law, 2005-14; Chambers USA: America's Leading Lawyers for Business – Gaming & Licensing and Native American Law, 2007-14.

Dr. Rifkin's research primarily focuses on Native American writing and politics from the eighteenth century onward, exploring the ways that Indigenous peoples have negotiated U.S. racial and imperial formations. In particular, he is interested in how U.S. law shapes the possibilities for representing Native political identity and the ways that Native writers have worked to inhabit, refraction, refuse, and displace dominant administrative formulations in order to open room for envisioning and enacting self-determination. More recently, he has been drawing on queer theory to rethink the role kinship systems have played in Native governance and internationalism and to address the ways U.S. imperialism can be thought of as a system of compulsory heterosexuality. Publications: Settler Common Sense: Queerness and Everyday Colonialism in the American Renaissance, (University of Minnesota Press, 2014); The Erotics of Sovereignty: Queer Native Writing in the Era of Self-Determination (U. of Minnesota Press, 2012); When Did Indians Become Straight?: Kinship, The History of Sexuality, and Native Sovereignty (Oxford University Press, 2011); Sexuality, Nationality, Indigeneity: Rethinking the State at the Intersection of Native American and Queer Studies (special issue of "GLQ: A Journal of Lesbian and Gay Studies," co-edited with Daniel Heath Justice and Bethany Schneider, 16.1-2, 2010); Manifesting America: The Imperial Construction of U.S. National Space (Oxford University Press, 2009). Articles: "The Silence of Ely S. Robertson is best known for his work as lead guitarist and primary songwriter for The Band, and for his career as a solo recording artist. Robertson's work with the Band was instrumental in creating the Americana music genre. Robertson has been inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and the Canadian Music Hall of Fame as a member of the Band, and has been inducted to Canada's Muic Hall of Fame as a member of the Band, and has been inducted to Canada's Walk of Fame, both with the Band and on his own. He is ranked 59th in Rolling Stone magazine's list of the 100 greatest guitarists.<sup>[5]</sup> As a songwriter, Robertson is credited for writing "The Weight",

"The Night They Drove Old Dixie Down", "Up on Cripple Creek", "Broken Arrow", "Somewhere Down the Crazy River", and many others. He has been inducted into the Canadian Songwriters Hall of Fame, and received a Lifetime Achievement Award from the National Academy of Songwriters.<sup>[4]</sup> As a film soundtrack producer and composer, Robertson is known for his collaborations with director Martin Scorsese, which began with the rockumentary film The Last Waltz (1978), and continued through a number of dramatic films, including Raging Bull (1980), Casino (1995), The Departed (2006), The Wolf of Wall Street (2013) and The Irishman (2019). He has worked on many other soundtracks for film and television. Robie narrates the four-part PBS documentary Native America (telecast Oct. 23-Nov. 13, streaming thereafter, and available on DVD). "Partly because of my heritage, the subject is something I'm drawn to," says Robertson, whose Mohawk/Cayuga mother grew up on Canada's Six Nations Indian Reserve and taught him, "Be proud you're an Indian, but be careful who you tell." Robertson's career was partly inspired by his Six Nations musician relatives, and he is, along with Jimi Hendrix and Jesse Ed Davis, one of the greatest popular guitarists with native ancestry. Robertson has recorded two albums of his own Native American music. "This story goes back 15,000 years," says Robertson, and Native America ambitiously covers the entire period, using oral history, DNA analysis and multispectral imaging to show how interconnected the culture has been as it spread to cover the hemisphere. Even before working on the documentary, "I knew about the areas directly connected to my heritage," says Robertson, who as a child heard a Six Nations elder tell the story of the origin of the Iroquois Confederacy, which united the warring Haudenosaunee ["People of the Longhouse"] native tribes, forming the world's oldest participatory democracy 500 years before the Declaration of Independence. Robertson wrote a 2015 children's book about it, Hiawatha and the Peacemaker. "The Founding Fathers of the United States were trying to figure out a way not to do things the way they did in Europe, with kings and queens," says Robertson, "and they met with these Haudenosaunee native chiefs, who said, 'The way we do it is, we all vote, and whoever we vote for, that's who we put in charge.' A refreshing idea, and the Founders adopted a lot of that in the Constitution." "The story in Native America is thousands and thousands of years. I'm proud to have been part of it."

Before joining the BIE's headquarters staff in Washington, D.C. in 2012, Roessel had served since October 2011 as the Bureau's Associate Deputy Director for Navajo Schools, where he was responsible for overseeing 66 BIE-funded schools on the Navajo Nation reservation in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah. He became the associate deputy director after having served since 2007 as superintendent of Rough Rock Community School, a BIE-funded, tribally operated K-12 boarding school near Chinle, Ariz., on the Navajo Nation reservation. From 2010 to 2011, Roessel had served as chair of the Department of the Interior's No Child Left Behind Negotiated Rule Making Committee and on the Sovereignty in Navajo Education Reauthorization Task Force with the Navajo Education Department of Diné Education. Roessel has been a prominent figure in Indian education for many years. The Rough Rock Community School, at which he served for more than a dozen years from 1998 to 2011, had been the first American Indian-operated, and the first Navajo-operated, school when it opened in 1966 within what was then the Bureau of Indian Affairs school system. Today that system is administered by the BIE, established in 2006. During his tenure as superintendent at Rough Rock, Roessel helped to oversee a major school replacement and improvement project funded under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 and carried out by the Indian Affairs Office of Facilities, Environmental & Cultural Resources. The official opening of the replacement school and facilities was held on August 15, 2011. Roessel started at Rough Rock in August 1998 as the director of community services, developing programs for teacher recruitment and student enrollment in addition to coaching baseball and teaching photography to students. In July 2000, he became the school's executive director, where he served until he was named superintendent in 2007. Before working for the Rough Rock Community School, Roessel served from September 1997 to December 2000 as director of the Navajo Nation Round Rock Chapter AmeriCorps program where he developed partnerships to improve education and housing within the Round Rock chapter community. Roessel also has worked as a photographer, writer and editor for various publications and projects including vice president/editor of the Navajo Nation Today newspaper (1990-1992), which he also co-owned; managing editor of the Navajo Times Today (1985-1987); a photojournalist with the Greeley (Colo.) Tribune (1985) & a photographer/writer with the Navajo View of Navajo Life Project (1984). In addition, he has worked since 1987 as an author and photographer on various projects, and has written extensively about Navajo life and culture. He also served on the Visual Task Force board for the first annual gathering of minority journalists associations, including the Native American Journalists Association (NAJA), known as the UNITY conference.

The Red nation Television Network Library has increased from 100 to 1000 titles and still growing on DVD and Joanelle produces original content for Red Nation TV all available to watch instantly on the computer and the TV. Red Nation TV offers an alternate distribution method in providing the broadest variety of films from the Native perspective for consumers that might not otherwise be seen. In 2019, Joanelle launched the first 'Monthly Film Series' dedicated to Native Cinema held once a month in partnership with Lumiere Music Hall. In the history of the entertainment industry there has never been a venue dedicated to Native Cinema on the big screen. Other professional posts: Founded Spirit World Productions - produces American Indian films, television and music (1991); founder, president, Red Nation Film Festival (RNFF) - annual concert series and educational out-reach programs (1995); founded Red Nation Records - American Indian record label (2001); launched in 2006, the first American Indian Internet Media Network Channel (all Native programming); also in 2006, launched and hosts Red Nation Radio Contemporary and Traditional American Indian Music, Northridge, CA. Community activities: Initiated, created and produced the launching of the "First Annual American Indian Heritage Month" in the City of Los Angeles. Film & Video credits: Romero, with seventeen films to her credit as a lead actress, is perhaps best known for her leading roles in such films as "A Girl Called Hatter Fox" and "Powwow Highway," a winner at a previous Sundance Film Festival. In 1992, she founded Spirit World Productions, an American Indian production company, dedicated to supporting Native American music, film and television projects. Spirit World's introductory project was Michael Jackson's Black or White music video. Then Romero began producing, directing, and writing her own film and video projects, the first of which was a documentary short film, "The Third Verse, 500 Years, Land of the Children. This film won a merit award at the Columbus International Film Festival in 1993, a first place trophy at the Red Earth Film Festival in 1994, and shown two years in a row at the American Indian Film Festival in San Francisco. In 1994, she produced an informational video for U.S. West Communications, "Where the Red Road Meets the Information Super Highway," 1st Place award winner at the Red Earth Film Festival in 1995. Also in 1994, she directed "Melvin and John," a documentary segment for a PBS series about people living with HIV/AIDS all across America...won 1st Place at Red Earth in 1995. In 1995, she co-created and co-produced the first "Red Nation Celebration" (contemporary Native American entertainment to Santa Fe's Indian Art Market each year) and was one of the featured performers. In 1996, Romero produced "Allan Houser: A Lasting Vision," a documentary on the early life of world renowned Apache Indian sculptor Allan Houser. Recently, she co-created and produced a contemporary American Indian dramatic TV series, "Red Blanket," currently being pitched to major networks & studios. She also produced "Home, Home on the Rez," a demo episode of this series. As a direct result of the demo, she and her production company were written up in Newsweek, appeared on the cover of the LA Times. Romero believes that the TV series, "Red Blanket" will begin shooting in 1997. Most recently, Romero co-created and co-wrote an American Indian children's program which will be produced in 1997; Directed, produced & wrote in 2000, "American Holocaust, When It's All Over, I'll Still Be Indian" a 30 minute documentary feature film. Memberships: Screen Actors Guild. Awards, honors: 2005 Armin T. Wegner Humanitarian Award (Documentary); 2003 Fargo Film Festival Award (Documentary); 2002 Los Angeles Women's Theatre Integrity Award; 2000 American Indian Film Festival Award (Documentary); 2000 Oscar Consideration (Documentary); Joanelle is the longest standing American Indian member of the Screen Actors Guild and produced the only panel, "Where Are We in Film, Television & Radio" to date at the SAG in 2000 and in 2012 "Native Women in Film & Television. Interests: Ms. Romero has been a true activist against alcoholism among her American Indian people. Romero, fifteen years sober, promotes sobriety and healthy lifestyles within the American Indian community. She has traveled from reservation to reservation to speak with youth on racism, alcoholism, and encouraging them to "Live Their Dream." She is writing her autobiography: Maybe I'm Not Crazy. She believes that there should be more stories by and about American Indian women.

ROSETTE, ROBERT A. (Chippewa-Cree) 1971-(attorney; law firm partner)

Education: University of New Mexico, BA, 1993; Arizona State University, College of Business, MBA, 1996, ASU Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law, JD, 1996. Affiliation & Address: Founding Partner, Rosette LLP (2005-present), 565 W. Chandler Blvd. #212, Chandler, AZ 85225 (480) 889-8990. E-mail: rosette@rosettelaw.com. Mr. Rosette formed Rosette, LLP to exclusively represent Indian Tribal Governments in all facets of federal Indian law, including finance, commercial transactions, economic development, gaming and litigation. Having obtained a Masters of Business Administration in finance, Robert maintains a unique and keen understanding of financial transactions, which is evidenced by over $4 Billion in economic development and governmental infrastructure projects for over 30 tribes in eight States. He has raised such capital through various forms of financing, including direct bank loans, taxable & tax exempt bond financing, venture capital, development loans, and bridge financing for his Tribal clients. Mr. Rosette's extensive experience also includes all areas of gaming for both brick and mortar and Internet gambling ventures. Mr. Rosette has successfully negotiated dozens of gaming compacts and has overseen the development, management and financing of tribal casinos in several states throughout the country. Mr. Rosette works tirelessly to restore Indian lands and take land into trust for gaming purposes, and has done so for Tribes such as the Picayune Rancheria and the Habematolel Pomo of Upper Lake, both located in the State of California. Mr. Rosette has been involved with Internet gaming issues pursuant to the IGRA since 1997. He has represented Indian tribes with the successful launch of internet gaming websites for Class II bingo and poker. He brings legal ingenuity and creativity in developing and defending economic development diversification projects by utilizing Tribal sovereign attributes (e.g.: enabling legislation, regulation, value adding), which allows his Tribal clients to pursue opportunities in unique business ventures such as tribal government consumer lending, pharmaceutical distribution, gasoline distribution, and cigarette manufacturing & distribution. Mr. Rosette's litigation experience includes Indian tribal cases involving public interest and civil rights. For example, he successfully resolved a dispute between the Havasupai Tribe and the State of Arizona in a case whereby the Tribe alleged the illegal taking of its blood & genetic material. Mr. Rosette also successfully litigated a case saving the Pauma Band of Luiseno Mission Indians over $100 Million in Compact payments allegedly owed to the State of California against then Governor Schwarzenegger. He conducted the first arbitration regarding off-Reservation mitigation pursuant to a gaming compact, and received a victorious award against the County of San Diego on behalf of the La Posta Tribe of Mission Indians. Mr. Rosette has also successfully restored recognition of Tribal governments against United States' attempts to dissolve them, including the California Valley Miwok Tribe; the Lower Lake Rancheria, Koi Nation; and the Wilton Rancheria. Mr. Rosette has extensive federal lobbying experience. He frequently drafts tribal constitutions, ordinances and policies, and has negotiated thousands of business agreements between tribal governments and private corporations for economic development projects. Past professional posts: Clerk for Hon. Raymond Austin, Navajo Nation Supreme Court, 1994-95; managing partner, Monteau & Peebles, LLP, 1997-2005. Mr. Rosette's practice includes all facets of federal Indian law, including gaming, finance, economic development and commercial transactions. Membership: Chippewa-Cree Tribe of the Rocky Boys Indian Reservation.

E-mail: gsarris@gratonrancheria.com. Website: www.greg-sarris.com. Greg oversees all business negotiations and the daily operations of the tribe. In 1992, when Greg was beginning his teaching career at UCLA as a professor, he got word of another tribe attempting to establish a casino at Tomales Bay. This tribe was not Coast Miwok or Southern Pomo and was well out of its ancestral territory. Greg notified and consulted with Tribal elders, and soon after called the first meeting to reorganize the Federated Indians of the Graton Rancheria. He led the push for restoration of the tribe as a federally recognized American Indian nation. It took years of gathering records, family histories and interviews of all who were descended from the original Tribal members, in order for this evidence to be submitted to the United States Department of the Interior. Finally, eight years later, Greg co-authored the Graton Rancheria Restoration Act, 25 U.S.C. §1300n (Act) with California Indian Legal Services. President Clinton signed the Act into law on December 27, 2000, officially granting the Tribe status as a federally recognized tribe. Other professional posts: 2005 to present, Greg has held the Graton Rancheria Endowed Chair in Writing and Native American Studies at Sonoma State University. SCHAEFFER, SUZANNE R.
(attorney; Native American law)

Education: University of Virginia School of Law, 1990, JD; The College of William & Mary, 1985, BA. Affiliation & Address: Of Counsel, Dentons LLP, Public Policy and Regulation & Native American Law & Policy Practice, 1900 K St., NW, Washington, DC 20006 (202) 408-7097. She concentrates her practice on Indian lands and environmental compliance issues. Susi draws on her years of experience in both the federal government and the private sector working to resolve legal issues pertaining to Indian lands, natural resources and the federal environmental regulatory system. Susi advises clients in acquiring land in trust for both gaming and non-gaming purposes pursuant to the fee-to-trust authorities of the US Department of the Interior (DOI), and she has extensive experience working with the DOI to achieve clients' land acquisition objectives. She is also well versed in other Indian lands issues, including land claims, leasing and rights-of-way over Indian lands, and Section 81 approval requirements. Susi has particular experience in handling environmental compliance issues on Indian lands, and she regularly counsels clients regarding compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), as well as other environmental requirements in conjunction with acquiring land in trust. She also provides advice regarding environmental regulatory and jurisdictional issues, such as tribal environmental ordinances and the extent of state, tribal and federal permitting authority. She has participated at a number of conferences as an invited speaker on Indian land, energy and environmental matters. In addition, Susi is very familiar with the requirements of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act. She has significant experience working with both the DOI and the National Indian Gaming Commission on gaming matters, and she has spoken at several conferences on Indian gaming issues. This experience serves as a foundation for providing strategic and practical advice to clients regarding tribal gaming ordinances, management contracts, Indian lands issues and other matters related to the development of Indian gaming facilities. She also advises clients regarding federal acknowledgment and federal funding issues. Awards, honors: Best Lawyers ranking, 2013-15. Memberships: Federal Bar Association, Indian Law Section; Native American Bar Association. Past affiliations: Prior to going into private practice, Susi served in key positions at the DOI and the US Department of Justice (DOJ). At the DOI, she provided legal advice to the Bureau of Indian Affairs on a wide variety of environmental matters arising on Indian lands, and from 2000 to 2005 she served as the assistant solicitor for Environment, Land and Minerals. Her duties included providing legal advice and supervising legal work involving all aspects of the acquisition, sale, development, leasing, use & conservation of Indian lands & natural resources, including fee-to-trust acquisitions, compliance with the NEPA, and the nature and extent of the federal government's trust obligations. During her tenure with the federal government, Susi received numerous awards and honors and developed excellent professional contacts and a unique perspective and understanding of the components of the federal government that make and influence Native American policy and legal positions.

SCHEFFLER, LENOR A. (Lower Sioux Dakota)
(attorney)

Education: St. Olaf College, BA, 1979; William Mitchell College of Law, JD, 1988. Affiliation & Address: Attorney & Chair, Native American Law Section, Best & Flanagan LLP, 225 S. Sixth St., 40th Fl., Minneapolis, MN 55402 (612) 349-5687. Email: lscheffler@bestlaw.com. She practices in the areas of federal Indian law, tribal law, tax, governance, gaming law, gaming regulatory, tribal financing and business law. Born and raised on the Lower Sioux Reservation near Morton, Minnesota, Lenor is an enrolled member of the Lower Sioux Dakota Community in Minnesota and the first member of the Mdewakanton Dakota Community to become an attorney. In October 2001, she was sworn in as chief judge of the Upper Sioux Community Tribal Court, and served until 2006. In 2012, she was reappointed to the bench. Scheffler brings a wide range of experience in gaming and regulatory matters, complex business transactions, finance, tax, governance and other areas critical to tribal clients. These areas require special understanding of tribal immunity and law principles as applied to a sovereign nation. Along with the other members of the firm's Native American Law Section, she serves as general and special counsel to tribes and tribal entities, and provides advice and support to in-house counsel. Lenor and her partners have been on the cutting edge of obtaining favorable tax solutions for beneficiaries of tribal minors' trusts and for tribal members participating in tribal housing and other social benefit programs. In one significant case, Lenor and her partners successfully argued on behalf of a tribal minor's trust fund, receiving a very substantial monetary award. She also assisted in developing programs for investing tribal funds, educational assistance for tribal members and sophisticated financing for tribal projects. In 2003, Lenor was appointed to the Minnesota Commission on Judicial Selection as an at-large member and served for eight years. She is a frequent conference speaker on the topics of Indian taxation, economic development, governance, tribal court and jurisdiction issues across the country, including classes for tribal tax commissions, tribal councils, tribal enterprise boards, tribal management teams and other tribal government departments. In addition, the Internal Revenue Service appointed Lenor to its Advisory Committee for Tax Exempt and Government Entities for a term from 2004 to 2007. Lenor has also been named among the Best Lawyers in America. Lenor contributes her time and expertise to the community in multiple ways and was a recipient of the Turtle Award from the Minnesota American Indian Chamber of Commerce for volunteering time, energy and services to support & promote the American Indian business community. She also serves as an Associate Judge II with the Sisseton Wahpeton Oyate Tribal Court and a Justice of the Prairie Island Indian Community Appellate Court. Memberships: Minnesota State Bar Assn; Minnesota American Indian Bar Assn (founding member); Minnesota American Indian Chamber of Commerce. Admissions: Ho-ChunkNation Tribal Court; Mille Lacs Band of Ojibwe Court of Central Jurisdiction; Prairie Island Dakota Community, Shhakoeppe Mdewakanton Dakota Community, and Stillaguamish Tribal Courts.

Tim joined Hobbs Straus as partner in 2005 and opened the Firm's newest office in Sacramento, California. Prior to joining Hobbs Straus, he served as general counsel for the Washoe Tribe of Nevada and California for seven years. Tim assists Indian tribes in their efforts to enhance, preserve, and protect their nationhood and to provide for the health, safety, and well-being of tribal citizens. He is devoted to developing strong tribal government institutions and economies. Through his experiences as in-house counsel, he has a thorough understanding of the challenges confronting tribal governments & has developed and implemented strategies to resolve these matters and advance the priorities of the tribal government. Tim is recognized for his knowledge of & experience in Public Law 280 Jurisdiction, tribal Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF), the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA), and protection of tribal sacred sites. His extensive experience, particularly in California, includes the successful defense of tribal jurisdiction law enforcement authority and reassumed exclusive ICWA jurisdiction. Tim negotiated intergovernmental agreements with the California attorney general, Department of Social Services, and several counties. He negotiated and drafted numerous commercial contracts and a gaming compact. Additionally, he assisted tribes with real estate transactions, drafting and securing federal and state laws, and has testified before the California legislature on several occasions. Tim also worked with tribal clients to draft and implement a range of tribal laws, regulations, policies, and bylaws in the areas of environmental regulation, land use, housing, elections, child protection, and procurement. Among his many accomplishments, Tim played a central role in developing a successful tribal TANF program that provides services in 13 counties located in two states. This included funding negotiations, state and county agreements, and drafting of governing policies. In the area of cultural preservation, he secured federal protection of tribal cultural sites, including Cave Rock, filed an amicus brief with the 9th Circuit supporting this decision, and secured tribal acquisition of several sites. Memberships: California Indian Law Association, Board Member; Federal Indian Bar Association.

Leah's undergraduate thesis, "The Crisis of Crow Dog," is an examination of the early shifts in criminal jurisdiction in Indian country in the late 19th century and its current impact on federal Indian law. Her graduate thesis, "Justice in Indian Country: A Case Study of the Tulalip Tribes," explores the goals and methods of the justice system of the Tulalip Reservation in Washington State. Her research continues to focus on those topics, with an emphasis on tribal sovereignty and cultural theory. In the summer of 2009, she participated in the Washington Internships for Native Students program (WINS), where she interned at the Dept. of Veterans Affairs.

SHEEHAN, DANIEL P.
(civil rights attorney; chief counsel & president)

Education: Harvard University, JD. Affiliation & Address: Chief Counsel & President, Lakota's People Law Project, 547 South 7th St. #149, Bismarck, ND 58504 (605) 299-5261. E-mail: info@lakotalaw.org. Since 2006, Daniel Sheehan has served as the lead attorney and general counsel for the Lakota People's Law Project (LPLP). Much of LPLP's work has been in South Dakota to stop violations of the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) and rescue Lakota children from an abusive state care system. In 2016, LPLP began organizing around the Dakota Access Pipeline. Our Lakota staff were on the ground at Oceti Sakowin camp from its inception in April 2016 to the final days in Feb. 2017. Daniel then represented Chase Iron Eyes who faced felony incitement to riot charges related to the #NoDAPL movement. The felony charges were dropped, preventing the use of both necessity and treaty defenses in the case. Published work: The People's Advocate - details "the inside story" of over a dozen historically significant American legal cases of the 20th Century, all of which he litigated.

SHELLENBERGER, LISA R. (Choctaw of Oklahoma)

Education: Truman State University, BA, 2007; University of Colorado School of Law, JD, 2011. Affiliation & Address: Attorney/Partner, Smith and Shellenberger, LLC (2011-present), 11990 Grant St., Suite 100, Northglenn, CO 80233 (303) 255-3588. E-mail: irs@ssslawyers.com. Lisa was appointed to the bench in January, 2018, to serve as an Appellate Judge for the Havasupai Court of Appeals in Supai, Arizona. Because her appointment to the bench is part-time, she still practices both in tribal courts throughout the West and in Colorado state district courts in the front-range area. Lisa's law practice is devoted to helping families, children, Indian Nations, and tribal entities. Lisa handles a variety of cases within the discipline of family law, which include divorce, child custody, adoption proceedings, dependency and neglect cases, guardianship actions, maternity and paternity actions, Indian Child Welfare Act cases, modifications of child support and parenting time, grandparent visitation actions, and third party allocation of parental responsibilities cases. Lisa also has extensive experience in the special niche of federal Indian law and tribal law. Lisa's practice related to these areas involves tribal employment issues, government-to-government relations, tribal health law, natural resource issues, and drafting tribal ordinances and resolutions. Lisa also has experience working closely on improving and/or developing tribal court programs and advising state and tribal judiciary committees. Additionally, Lisa is one of the nation's few attorneys that is well-versed and experienced in handling Tribe-to-State jurisdictional disputes. In many family law cases, parents find themselves encountering a jurisdictional dispute when the question of whether a state or tribe has jurisdiction over the case. These types of cases are legally complicated and the applicability of certain federal, state, or tribal laws may be confusing or misleading. However, Lisa has successfully represented clients in these cases in Colorado State District Courts and in various tribal courts around the country, and she does so frequently. Lisa is extremely involved in matters related to the Indian Child Welfare Act in Colorado, which is a federal law applied in certain types of cases involving Indian children. Specifically, Lisa is a member of the Indian Child Welfare Act Sub-Committee of the Colorado Court Improvement Program for the 17th Judicial District, and she was selected by the Honorable Judge Donna Schmalberger to be part of the committee that is developing and implementing the Denver Indian Child Welfare Act Court, which is the third specialized court of its type in the United States. Lisa is also a member of the committee currently drafting revisions to the Colorado Children's Code relating to the implementation and adherence to Indian Child Welfare Act. Past professional posts: Clerk to Justice Nancy E. Rice at the Colorado Supreme Court. While working for Justice Rice, Lisa reviewed petitions for a writ of certiorari, researched the legal significance of the petitions, and made final written recommendations to the Justices as to whether the Court should accept or deny the petitions. Published works: Opposing Viewpoints: Native Americans, "The Reasoning for and Purpose of the Bureau of Indian Affairs," Cengage Learning, April 2012. numerous national news articles, Awards, honors: Lisa attended law school at the University of Colorado Law School in Boulder where she received the "Excellence in Clinical Education Award." She is an award-winning lead litigator at the firm. In both 2017 and 2018, she received the Super Lawyers Rising Star award in the area of family law. In 2017 and 2018, she was named as a Top 10 Attorney in Colorado the area of family law by the American Institute of Family Law Attorneys. Additionally, in 2017, she was nationally ranked as a Top 10 Under 40 Family Law Attorney by the National Academy of Family Law Attorneys.

SHORBULL, THOMAS (Oglala Lakota) (Indian college president)

Education: University of South Dakota, BA (Government), 1970, MA (Public Administration), 1973. Affiliation & Address: President, Oglala Lakota College, P.O. Box 490, Kyle, SD 57752 (605) 455-2321. E-mail: tshortb@olc.edu. President Shortbull's leadership abilities were first evidenced when he attended the University of South Dakota (USD) from 1965-70 where he served as president of the university's Wapaha (War Bonnet) Indian Club. In 1970, he taught for one year at Flandreau Indian School as a Native American studies teacher. After receiving his master's degree in public administration from USD in 1973, he was selected as the coordinator of the Task Force on Indian-State Government Relations that passed progressive legislation allowing for cooperative agreements between Indian tribes and the State of South Dakota. The task force studied the problems of taxation, hunting and fishing rights, law enforcement issues, water rights, and Indian voting rights. The goal of the task force was to seek cooperative agreements in the areas studied. In 1974, the task force introduced eight bills into the South Dakota legislative session; seven were passed. One of the areas that was studied led to a report by President Shortbull that concluded there was gerrymandering among three counties on the Rosebud and Pine Ridge reservations. His recommendation to the task force was to have Todd, Shannon, and a portion of Bennett County included in a new legislative district that would be a majority of Indian people. The task force did not approve of the recommendation, but the South Dakota Civil Rights Commission and the U.S. Civil Rights Commission did approve the recommendation and forwarded it to the U.S. Justice Department. In 1981, under section five of the Voting Rights Act, South Dakota was required to create a voting district with a majority of the district being Indian people. In 1982, the newly created legislative district elected its first representatives, and President Shortbull was the first elected state senator from this district that included Todd and Shannon Counties, along with a portion of Bennett County. He served three terms as the legislative district 27 state senator, from 1983-88. From 1980-1995, he held the following positions: director of the Rapid City Indian Service Council (1980-81); coordinator of the Rapid City Johnson O'Malley Program (1992-93); and the Black Hill Pow Wow director. President Shortbull's greatest success came as president of Oglala Lakota College. He was president from 1975-79, and from 1995 to the present. Awards, honors: Inducted into the South Dakota Hall of Fame in September 2017.

Her research interests lie at the intersections of Indigenous oral tradition and climate change, federal Indian law and policy, promoting access to ancestral heritage lands, and helping Native Nations build a legal-cartographic strategy for assertions of treaty rights and land claims via geospatial technology. In recent years, she has focused on developing a curriculum of theory and methodology unique to working with Indigenous communities, has collaborated with museums and Native Nations to ensure compliance with the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA) and has collaborated with other scholars and researchers in several other disciplines including natural resources, law, and archaeology. Awards, honors: She held the prestigious National Science Foundation Graduate Research Fellowship for her research on the connections between ancestral landscapes and Native American identity. She remains the only graduate student to have received this award in an American Indian Studies department. Past professional posts: In addition to her teaching and research, she held a position with the Arizona State Museum, the oldest and largest anthropology museum in the Southwest. Dr. Stuart-Richard has a body of work as a NAGPRA specialist and historic archaeologist that spans over two decades. After the passage of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act in 1990, she worked with the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers Center for Expertise to develop Standard Operating Procedures to ensure the U. S. Army's full compliance with this unique federal law. As a Native from Oklahoma, Dr. Stuart-Richard has performed significant research into the historical process of allotment in Indian Territory in the late 19th century, the after-effects of intergenerational trauma and historic grief, and the significant role that access to natural resources played in the allotment process. Her lecture When the Watchdogs Joined the Wolves: A Tricky Little Game of Indian Territory Land Fraud remains a popular and frequently requested presentation. She also performs in-depth research into topics such as Native Americans in the formation of the Early National (Colonial) period in U. S. history as well as the Civil War and Reconstruction eras.

SUAZO, GILBERT, SR. (Taos Pueblo)
(tribal council member; former pueblo governor)

Affiliation & Address: Tribal Council Member (Former Governor), Pueblo of Taos, P.O. Box 1846, Taos, NM 87571 (575) 758-9593. It was a group of Native youth who ran 500 miles from Cannonball, North Dakota, to the district office of the United States Army Corps of Engineers in Omaha, Nebraska, to protest the Dakota Access Pipeline. Then they ran 2,000 miles to Washington, D.C., to the Army Corps' headquarters. Then "Standing Rock" happened. Or that push from Native youth to call out professional sports teams and their mascots. Or a call to vote. Or ... there are so many good stories, generational ledgers that pass on the values of a community, a society, a people. There is another story to tell about youth; the one where we add time and context. Fifty years ago Gilbert Suazo Sr. was in such a youth society representing Taos Pueblo. Their mission was the return of the sacred Blue Lake. Suazo serves on the Taos Pueblo Council and is a former governor. "Thinking back," Suazo recalls, "I realize now how complicated that would have been. It's almost impossible for it to have happened with the opposition that was there. And thankfully we didn't think like that at the time, all we were interested in was we were going to get that land back one way or another."

Box 6296, Morgantown, WV26506 (304) 293-3107. E-mail: yhammond@mail.wvu.edu Swartz-Hammond has been teaching and studying Native American literature for over ten years in both public high schools and higher education. Drawn to the perspectives of Race and Gender Studies, Swartz-Hammond hopes to bring greater awareness to the way Native voices can help enhance discussions outside of Native studies. Her work tends to examine epic narratives, particularly creative non-fiction forms of storytelling. Influenced by the work of Gerald Vizenor, Swartz-Hammond's dissertation uses the term survivance to explore historical narration in 20th Century American texts in which the child's experience of or witnessing trauma reveals conflict between family and state-sponsored identities. In addition to her work in Native and family studies, Swartz-Hammond continues to support the work of Kathleen Ryan with the Appalachian Prison Book Project, a not-for-profit organization that sends books to imprisoned peoples. A forthcoming essay in West Virginia History, written with Ryan, reviews Work & Hope, an early 20th century journal written by prisoners in the West Virginia Penitentiary. Additionally, a forthcoming edited collection will publish Swartz-Hammond's essay written about prison sex and gender in Orange is the New Black, called "Cleaning Up Your Act: Surveillance, Queer Sex, and the Imprisoned Body."

SZOTKOWSKI, WILIAM A.

Education: University of Wisconsin, Eau Claire, BA, 1981; Hamline University School of Law, JD, 1984. Affiliation & Address: Attorney, Hogen Adams PPLP, 1935 W. County Road B2, Suite 460, St. Paul, MN 55113 (651) 842-9105. E-mail: bszotkowski@hogenadams.com. Mr. Szotkowski has extensive experience in Indian law issues. Since 2004, Bill has represented tribes and tribal members in governance matters, complex federal-court litigation, contract negotiation and construction litigation. He was the lead attorney in a successful 2010 federal-court case brought by the Saginaw Chippewa Tribe of Michigan to gain permanent recognition of its Reservation Boundary, as defined by Executive Order and treaties in 1855 and 1864. The United States joined the Saginaw Tribe's efforts in the litigation against the State of Michigan & county and city governments. After five years of protracted litigation, the parties were able to reach a successful mediated settlement of the litigation. That settlement provided for permanent recognition of the Isabella Reservation, including all lands within the reservation as Indian Country. The settlement also provided for multifaceted agreements in areas relating to law enforcement, taxation, Indian Child welfare protection, and natural resource issues, as well as jurisdictional agreements relating to land use, local revenues, and local ordinances. It remains in place today and is a model for boundary disputes nationwide. Mr. Szotkowski also has extensive experience in litigation involving the application of the National Labor Relations Act to tribes, both before the National Labor Relations Board and in the federal courts. Before he entered private practice, Bill spent several decades in service to the Minnesota Attorney General's Office. During that time, he gained significant litigation experience before state & federal courts, including the Supreme Court of the United States. Mr. Szotkowski had principal responsibility for the State's major cases involving Indian-law issues, & handled litigation concerning jurisdictional disputes, class-action land claims, treaty rights, natural-resource issues, and Indian burial grounds. In addition to litigating cases, he coordinated settlement efforts in several cases, and was able to put in place solutions that included legislation at both the state and federal level. Mr. Szotkowski has lectured on Indian law, tribal sovereignty, and natural-resource issues.

Affiliation & Address: Associate Professor & Interim Director, American Indian Studies Program, University of Illinois, Urbana, 1204 W. Nevada St. MC-138, Urbana, IL 61801 (217) 265-9870. E-mail: numu@illinois.edu. Dustin is an interdisciplinary scholar of North American indigenities, critical media, and sound. Tahmahkera's first book Tribal Television: Viewing Native People in Sitcoms (University of North Carolina Press, 2014) foregrounds representations of the indigenous, including Native actors, producers, and comedic subjects, in U.S., First Nations, and Canadian television and other media from the 1930s-2010s within the contexts of federal policy and social activism. His current book project "Comanches in the Media Borderlands" (under contract with the University of Nebraska Press' "Indigenous Films" series) is a cultural history of real and reel Comanches' performative work onscreen and off in the production of what Tahmahkera calls "Comancheria cinema." For more on this research, see his articles "We're Gonna Capture Johnny Depp!": Making Kin with Cinematic Comanches" in American Indian Culture and Research Journal (UCLA Press) and "Haaka tsa Kwitop Hahka?: Seeking Representational Jurisdiction in Comancheria Cinema" forthcoming in Native American and Indigenous Studies (University of Minnesota Press). Another project is "Sounds Indigenous: Listening for Sonic Sovereignty in Indian Country" on the transnational and transtribal migrations of sound and music in indigenous homelands and the U.S.-Mexico borderlands. On Indigenous Peoples Day in 2017, the site Sounding Out! published Tahmahkera's "Becoming Sound: Tubitsinakukuru from Mt. Scott to Standing Rock." For his earlier work in indigenous sound studies, see "An Indian in a White Man's Camp": Johnny Cash's Indian Country Music" in the special Sound issue of American Quarterly. Professor Tahmahkera serves on the Editorial Board of Cinema Journal, the official journal of the Society for Cinema and Media Studies. He also consults on film projects, curates Indigenous film series (e.g., Briscoe Western Art Museum in San Antonio, 2018), and writes curriculum guides (LaDonna Harris: Indian 101 and Through the Repellent Fence) for Vision Maker Media and PBS documentaries. He also has delivered invited talks, such as the 2017 annual Shaw Lecture in American Studies at Dickinson College.

(musician & community activist)

Born in Belleville, N.J. on Jan. 14, 1969, Kevin dedicated his life and professional energy to Native arts through various forms of music, theatre and activism. He had a passion for performing Native music. "A part of knowing this knowledge and being one of these song-carriers and dancers is you do these things for those that can't," he said. "And you do these things to make yourself feel good and make others feel good." Tarrant served as board chairman and executive director of the American Indian Community House (AICH) for several years. During his time at AICH, he was a speaker, teacher, presenter and coordinator of countless events, shows and honoring ceremonies. Throughout his musical career, which started in 1990 after he co-founded The SilverCloud Singers, an intertribal Native American drum and dance troupe, Tarrant became an internationally known touring artist. Over the years, he performed at powwows and other Native events across the country, as well as high profile shows at The Apollo, Roseland and the Theater at Madison Square Garden. Another accomplishment for The SilverCloud Singers was its inclusion on Music for the Native Americans, a 1994 album by Robbie Robertson and the Red Road Ensemble. As a solo artist, he performed with the acapella First Nations group, Ulali, composer David Amram, Tony-award winning choreographer Savion Glover and award-winning percussionist Alessandra Belloni in 2016, along with his wife Muriel Tarrant, he co-founded Safe Harbors, an Indigenous collective focusing on developing and producing Native Indigenous theater and performing arts in New York City. More recently, he was the musical director and performed in the Safe Harbors' production of Don't Feed the Indians – A Divine Pageant! at La MaMa. Last year, he was the composer and percussionist for the Broadway production and national tour of Ajijack on Turtle Island. He died on May 4, 2020 due to complications from COVID-19.

The defense of sovereignty of Native people as it relates to international policy and tribal relationships with federal and state governments is of utmost importance to Tribal Chief Eric Thompson, Tehoroniathe (Bright Sky). Now in his second term as an elected member of the Saint Regis Mohawk Tribal Council, he continues to be driven by the decision to step into leadership to preserve the Mohawk language, culture and sovereignty in his community of Akwesasne. His expertise is in research and public policy as it relates to treaty rights, specifically as it pertains to taxation in Indian Country, hunting and fishing, border crossing and land claims. Tribal Chief Thompson has committed his tenure in office to re-engaging in lobbying efforts on both the state and federal level for the purpose of impacting land claims, border crossing and increased access to educational funding for Native communities. Environmental remediation concerns are a priority for Council and they continue to work with the Environmental Protection Agency, fighting for remediation, increased monitoring and removal of industrial waste surrounding the territory, which has, for decades, contributed to chronic illness within the community of Akwesasne. Healthcare issues, including addiction, are on the forefront of Tribal Council priorities. Education, prevention and access to rehabilitation are vital resources and Tribal Chief Thompson believes it is imperative to ensure Health Services has sustained financial support. From an environmental perspective, lobbying efforts with both the EPA and federal government are critical to achieving long-term health and wellness of the community. Chief Thompson has championed the development of a Tribal agriculture program. In its first phase, the program will integrate traditional horticulture and innovative cutting edge growing techniques to promote career training, cultural restoration, and economic development. Past professional post: Tribal Sub-Chief, 2012-15. Community activities: Eric serves on the Tewathahonni Corporation as Vice Chair, and the representative for the Tribe on the Akwesasne Cultural Restoration Commission. Tribal Chief Thompson resides in Akwesasne, where he and his companion, Tammy, raise their three children, each fluent in the Mohawk language.

TOMPKINS, HILARY (Navajo-Dine')
(attorney; partner)

Education: Dartmouth College, BA Political Science & Government); Stanford University Law School, JD, 1996. Affiliation & Address: Partner (2017-present), Hogan Lovells US LLP, Columbia Square, 555 Thirteenth St., NW, Washington, DC 20004 (202) 637-5617. E-mail: hilary.tompkins@hoganlovells.com. As the top legal officer at the DOI, Hilary oversaw all legal matters involving the programs, operations, and activities within the department, with a focus on public lands, water infrastructure, energy development, minerals management, general administration, and Indian law. During her tenure as Solicitor, Hilary addressed and shaped many issues in public lands and Indian law, which is an area of special interest for her as she is a member of the Navajo Nation. At Hogan Lovells, Hilary continue to work on issues involving public lands, water infrastructure, energy development, and minerals management. In addition, Hilary will focus on issues of concern regarding Indian nations, self-determination, and leadership and will provide legal services regarding nation building and economic development, including Indian gaming and protection of tribal interests and treaty rights. From 2009 until to 2017, Hilary served in the presidentially-appointed, Senate-confirmed position of the Solicitor for the U.S. Department of the Interior (DOI)—the agency responsible for the management and conservation of public lands, natural and wildlife resource programs, and the trustee for the nation's Native American tribes. Hilary was the first Native American to serve in the role of Solicitor. In that role, she led a legal office of over 300 attorneys in 16 offices nationwide, and acquired significant experience in the areas of onshore and offshore energy development (conventional and renewable), the administration of federal water projects, conservation and wildlife legal requirements, and public land law. Her clients included the Bureau of Land Management, the National Park Service, the Fish & Wildlife Service, and the Bureau of Reclamation. Hilary is also a leader in federal Indian law in a wide range of areas, such as tribal self-determination and economic development, including Indian gaming, and protection of tribal jurisdictional interests and treaty rights. During her tenure at DOI, she set legal policy for the Department, managed the Department's position in litigation including cases before the U.S. Supreme Court, and

developed legal opinions to advance the Department's objectives. Her accomplishments include development of legal reforms in the aftermath of Deepwater Horizon, the successful defense of the first renewables on public lands, and the historic settlement of the largest class action lawsuit in U.S. history – the Cobell tribal trust litigation. Past professional posts: Solicitor, Department of the Interior, 2009-17; General Counsel, Office of the Governor, State of New Mexico, 2003-08; Associate, Sonosky, Chambers, Sachse & Andreson, 2000-02.

Affiliation & Address: Secretary-Treasurer, Citizen Potawatomi Nation, 1601 Gordon Cooper Dr., Shawnee, OK 74801 (405) 275-3121. E-mail: dtrousdale@potawatomi.org.

TRUDELL, RICHARD (Santee Sioux)
(attorney; executive director)

Education: San Jose State University, BS; Catholic University, JD. Affiliation & Address: Founder & Executive Director, American Indian Lawyer Training Program, Inc. (AILTP), 1025 W. Vine St., Stockton, CA 95203 (209) 460-0924. In 1980, he helped establish the American Indian Resources Institute (AIRI). He has played a major role in convening intergovernmental forums and meetings to address issues & challenges facing Indian Country. In the 1990s,

he worked closely with the U.S. Senate Committee on Indian Affairs on Indian leadership forums and the U.S. Public Health Service and the Indian Health Service on regional and national meetings that addresses Indian healthcare reform. Other professional post: Advisor, Blue Stone Strategy Group, Irvine, CA. While a law student at the University of New Mexico, he participated in the creation of the American Indian Law Association. Trudell founded and served as the executive director of the American Indian Lawyer Training Program (AILTP) and its American Indian Resources Institute (AIRI). After establishing AILTP, he also helped to create the American Indian Bar Association. Throughout several decades, he has given time, knowledge, and influence to the development of Indian law and policy, shaping tribal governance throughout Indian Country. Under his leadership, AILTP and AIRI have published extensively about the role of tribal governments within the constitutional framework of the U.S. government. Awards, honors: President Jimmy Carter nominated Trudell to serve on the national board of directors of the Legal Services Corporation (LSC), a federal entity established in 1974 by Congress to provide funding for legal aid programs across the country. "I served four years on the LSC board during the Carter administration," recalls Trudell. One of his fondest memories took place in the late 1980s when he was asked by Senator Daniel K. Inouye (D-Hawaii) to bring together a group of tribal leaders to discuss the needs of Native communities, to educate him about Indian Country, and to participate in initiating a process for shaping a tribal agenda to address the many challenges facing tribes. "After giving thought to the senator's remarks, I took on the task of organizing a small meeting of tribal leaders to explore the development of a native-owned bank. We had about 15 tribal leaders at the first meeting, including Elouise Cobell," Trudell says. The idea of establishing a Native-owned bank was well received and they held 11 more meetings to develop the Denver-based Native American Bank. Although the focus of Trudell's career has been primarily on a wide array of law and policy issues, establishment of the bank is an example of his impact on economic development in the financial services area. In 2014, the Native American Finance Officers Association (NAFOA) honored Trudell with a Lifetime Achievement Award.

Daniel is a renowned and respected Native American leader as well as one of the Nation's leading advocates for tribal gaming rights. He currently serves as Chairman of the California Nations Indian Gaming Association (CNIIGA), and as Vice Chairman of the National Indian Gaming Association (NIGA). Tucker's dedication has been the driving force in making Native American gaming an essential component of local economies. Tucker led more than 70 California tribes in a quest to protect tribal gaming rights and pioneered the first successful tribal gaming legislation in California history to win bi-partisan support. The National Indian Gaming Association (NIGA) has recognized him with the John Keefer Award for his tireless dedication to protecting tribal gaming. Tucker also played a vital role in the successful passage of Proposition 1A, which created an amendment to the California Constitution, ensuring Indian self-reliance in the state. He has worked with the White House and members of the U.S. Congress to achieve collaboration for tribal government gaming.

TUCKER, JAMES T.

Education: University of Oklahoma, MPA, 1995; University of Pennsylvania Law School, LL.M., 1998, JD, 2001. Affiliation & Address: Of Counsel, Wilson Elser, Moskowitz Edelman & Dicker LLP, 300 South 4th St., 11th Floor, Las Vegas, NV 89101 (702) 727-1246. E-mail: james.tucker@wilsonelser.com. Jim focuses his practice on representation of tribes, general litigation and appellate work, insurance defense, employment defense, voting rights and election law, and governmental relations. Jim has extensive legislative and policy experience working with Native American organizations on behalf of tribal governments and Alaska Native corporations. Much of his work has focused on achieving equal access for Native peoples to the political process through lobbying, grassroots organizing, education and litigation. For much of the past decade, Jim has represented tribal governments and individuals in landmark voting rights cases in Alaska. Since 1999, Jim's representation of governmental entities in Arizona has included performing general litigation work for Maricopa County; providing counseling advice to the Maricopa County Elections Department of the County Recorder's Office on federal voting laws; and representing the Coconino Association for Vocations, Industry, and Technology in Coconino County in redistricting and in administrative proceedings with the U.S. Department of Justice. Military service: Assistant Staff Judge Advocate (JAG) in the U.S. Air Force Reserve. A combat veteran, his military distinctions include the Air Medal and the Aerial Achievement Medal for service in the U.S. Air Force during Operation Desert Storm. Jim has a strong commitment to pro bono service, and has amassed an impressive body of work with the Native American Rights Fund (NARF). He serves as the Pro Bono Voting Rights Counsel to NARF, providing legal services on public policy work and in voting rights litigation. He was co-counsel with NARF in Toyukak v. Treadwell, the first language-assistance case under the Voting Rights Act (VRA) fully tried to a decision since 1980. He also served as co-counsel with NARF and the ACLU's Alaska affiliate in Nick v. Bethel, the first successful case brought on behalf of Alaska Natives under the VRA's language and voter assistance provisions. Other cases in which he has served as co-counsel with NARF include Samuelson v. Treadwell, an enforcement action under section 5 of the VRA; Alaska v. United States, a constitutional challenge to section 5; and as amicus curiae counsel for briefs filed on behalf of Alaska Natives in Shelby County v. Holder and Northwest Austin Municipal Utility District No. 1 v. Holder, constitutional challenges to section 5. In 2014, the firm selected Jim as its pro bono attorney of the year for his work on the Toyukak case. Jim is one of the founding members of the Native American Voting Rights Coalition (NAVRC), for which he is coordinating a 2017-2018 series of 12 field hearings throughout Indian Country on barriers that impair the rights of Native voters to register to vote, cast a ballot and have an equal opportunity to elect their candidates of choice. He is a member of the National Advisory Committee (NAC), a three-year appointment by the Director of the U.S. Census Bureau in which the 32 NAC members provide input on race, ethnicity and other categories for improved census operations, survey and data collection methods. His service on the NAC focuses on addressing cultural, geographic and linguistic barriers that Alaska Natives and American Indians face in participating in the decennial census and annual census surveys, as well as the historical distrust that Native Americans have toward the federal government. Jim serves as Chair of the Indian Law Section of the State Bar of Arizona for 2018-2019.

Mr. Ward is among the most experienced attorneys in the field of American Indian/Native American law in the nation, and he applies his expertise in a wide variety of matters and for both tribal and other clients. Steve began representing Indian tribes in 1994, and since then he has acquired a thorough understanding of and expertise in the field. His matters have included major national Indian law litigation and appeals, the subjects of which have included sovereignty and jurisdictional disputes, environmental and energy matters, breach-of-trust claims, cultural properties law, and many others. Additionally, he regularly provides counsel in a variety of Indian country business projects, financings, major gaming and resort developments, and other matters. Steve's clients are similarly diverse—from Indian tribes and tribal enterprises to national corporations and financial institutions. He founded, and continues to be involved in leading, the firm's Indian law practice. During the course of his career, Steve has represented Indian tribes and tribal interests throughout the nation. He has handled litigation and other matters on many leading issues of the day, including, among others, in the areas of enforcement of trust and fiduciary obligations owed to tribes and individual Indian people, Indian country environmental matters, allottee rights, energy matters, the scope and application of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act, tribal sovereign immunity, tribal tort claims, Indian country taxation, and tribal state jurisdictional disputes. Steve has handled appeals before the United States Supreme Court and several of the United States Courts of Appeals. He also practices regularly before federal administrative tribunals with jurisdiction over Indian country matters. Steve's practice also has a significant focus on business and economic development in Indian country, and on Indian country commercial transactions. He has had a key role in the development, financing, and operation of tribal enterprises, including gaming and resort enterprises. Steve also provides counsel to corporate and business clients who do business with Indian country. In this area, he has assisted with matters including the development of retail outlets and other businesses on Indian lands. Another aspect of Steve's practice has been the area of management of tribal legal affairs. He has served as general counsel to two Indian nations. Steve has handled a number of matters of first-impresion for tribes, including in the areas of sovereignty and sovereign immunity, conveyance and partition of Indian lands, environmental law, and intellectual property law. In 2017, Deputy Chief Warner was appointed to the Tribal Advisory Committee for the Center for Disease Control. He has been credited with working with the Oklahoma Veterans Commission in helping bring the new Veterans Center to Sallisaw. While on the Cherokee Nation Tribal Council, he was an advocate for the Cherokee Nation Foster Care program and worked diligently to bring positive changes to his district. Deputy Chief Warner grew up in Sallisaw where he spent much of his childhood at Blue Ribbon Downs, working with his family to train racehorses. He has a Bachelor of Science in biology and a master's in education. In 2009, Warner started his journey at Carl Albert State College as a science instructor, teaching chemistry, biology, microbiology and botany. Warner eventually assumed the position of campus director at the Sallisaw campus in 2017 before being elected to serve full time as Deputy Chief.

Travois strives to improve the lives of indigenous peoples by providing the tools and resources to create healthy, affordable and sustainable communities. While pursuing her undergraduate degree, she spent several years learning and analyzing federal laws, policies, treaties, the constitution, and tribal-federal government relations directly pertaining to Indigenous Sovereign Nations in the United States. Upon graduating, she realized that in order to further tribal sovereignty for her nation and Indian Country, she must obtain a Master's degree. June 2017, she started her graduate career at the Edwin O. Stene Program in Public Administration. One of the oldest and most respected programs in the United States in educating city managers at the University of Kansas with a #1 ranking. While completing her Master's degree in Public Administration, she furthered her knowledge and skills in law, policy, organizational management, and state and local government, all while simultaneously spending time cultivating relationships with various community leaders, tribal leaders, business professionals, government workers, and prospective congress reps. Currently, she is looking to secure a position in the government that focuses on equity work, tribal-state-federal relations, and continuing policy and programming, and or advocacy work. Andi is reliable, dedicated, externally upbeat, and has a way of seeing a larger picture. Her proven ability to leverage communication, leadership talents, and analyze existing laws, policies, and government structures, exemplifies her as an invaluable asset to any organization.

He also served as managing editor of Felix S. Cohen's Handbook of Federal Indian Law, the leading treatise on Indian law. The books he has written in recent years, such as 1992's The Eagle Bird, are aimed for a general audience, and they discuss society, history, and land in the American West. He won the Colorado Book Award for Messages From Frank's Landing, a profile of Billy Frank, Jr. of the Nisqually Tribe of western Washington. In his book, Blood Struggle: The Rise of Modern Indian Nations, he poses what he calls "the most fundamental question of all: Can the Indian voice endure?" Listen to an interview on Colorado Public Radio conducted by Dan Drayer about Blood Struggle. In his latest book The People Are Dancing Again: The History of the Siletz Tribe of Western Oregon, Professor Wilkinson writes about how the history of the Siletz Tribe is in many ways the history of many Indian tribes: a story of heartache, perseverance, survival, and revival. Past professional posts: Prior to joining the faculty of Colorado Law School, Charles Wilkinson practiced law with private firms in Phoenix and San Francisco and then with the Native American Rights Fund. In 1975, he became a law professor, teaching at the law schools of the University of Oregon, Michigan and Minnesota before moving to Colorado in 1987. Native American Rights Fund; Special Counsel to the Interior Department for the drafting of the Presidential Proclamation, signed by President Clinton in Sept. 1996, establishing the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument Zion National Park, Utah; acted as facilitator in negotiations between the National Park Service and the Timbisha Shoshone Tribe concerning tribal land base in Death Valley National Park in 2000. Awards, honors: University of Colorado's Distinguished University Professor; Professor Wilkinson has received teaching awards from his students at all three law schools where he has taught, and the Universities of Colorado and Oregon have given him their highest awards for leadership, scholarship, and teaching. He has also won acclamation from non-academic organizations. Professor Wilkinson acted as facilitator in negotiations between the National Park Service and the Timbisha Shoshone Tribe concerning a tribal land base in Death Valley National Park; in 2000 Congress enacted legislation ratifying the resulting agreement. He also served as facilitator in far-ranging negotiations between the City of Seattle and the Muckleshoot Indian Tribe. Published works: The Eagle Bird (1992); Crossing the Next Meridian (1992); Fire on the Plateau (1999); Messages From Frank's Landing: A Story of Salmon, Treaties, and the Indian Way; Blood Struggle: The Rise of Modern Indian Nations (W.W. Norton & Co., 2005); The People Are Dancing Again: The Siletz Tribe of Western Oregon (U. of Washington Press, 2010); Editor, et al. Cases and Materials on Federal Indian Law, 6th Ed. 2011; numerous articles & book chapters.

(attorney)

Education: School of Law, University of Texas, 1991, JD, with honors, Iowa State University, 1985, BS, Journalism & Political Science, Affiliation & Address: Counsel, Dentons LLP, Public Policy and Regulation and Native American Law & Policy Practice, 525 Market St., 26th Floor, San Francisco, CA 94105 (415) 882-5009. E-mail: paula.yost@dentons.com. Paula is dedicated to representing Indian tribal governments and their businesses in varied contexts, providing general advice and counsel on matters of governance and commerce, representing tribes in their dealings and negotiations with other governments and third parties and protecting or defending tribal sovereignty and general tribal interests through litigation. She acts in a general counsel capacity for two of the Firm's tribal clients. In representations that reach from California to Washington, DC, Paula has worked closely with tribal clients in their project development and gaming efforts, securing the needed federal approvals and then defending those approvals in litigation. In the same vein, she has negotiated Class III gaming compacts with the state of California on behalf of several tribal clients. She has a deep background in federal Indian law and gaming law, including the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act and the Unlawful Internet Gambling Enforcement Act. She regularly handles matters involving regulatory and environmental compliance and cultural resource protection. Paula's litigation work for tribal governments is wide-ranging, from the dismissal of litigation on sovereignty & related jurisdictional grounds to the representation of an Indian tribe in its effort to secure water and access rights for its reservation. Paula presently works as general counsel for the California Tribal College, a nonprofit corporation governed by federally recognized tribal governments in California, and first institution dedicated to providing secondary educational opportunities for Native Americans, a largely underserved population in the state that is home to more recognized tribes than any other state save Alaska. She has successfully defended the Table Mountain Rancheria, an Indian tribe that owns and operates a casino outside Fresno, CA, in lawsuits; has represented the Shingle Springs Band of Miwok Indians in a series of lawsuits challenging the tribe's economic development efforts; negotiated for the Yocha Dehe Wintun Nation the first ever cultural easement to be held by a federally-recognized tribal government over public lands in the state of California. The cultural easement, to be held in perpetuity, gives Yocha Dehe exclusive control over sacred sites and cultural resources located in a public park that is within the Tribe's ancestral territory and that is now owned by the City of Vallejo. She has negotiated tribal-state compacts on behalf of tribal clients vis-a-vis the state of Calif.
