Executive Summary

Home is where communities are formed, with far-reaching impacts on our lives and futures. Home provides us with a sense of belonging, safety, and access to economic and social opportunities. When housing choice and access are limited because of someone's protected characteristic, such as race, sexual orientation, or disability status, there are far-reaching impacts on access to job opportunity, quality education, and to one's mental and physical health.

The California Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD) produced this Final 2020 Analysis of Impediments to Fair Housing Choice (Final 2020 AI) in conformance with the Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing (AFFH) Final Rule (2015),<sup>1</sup> as required for all U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Community Planning and Development (CPD) funding recipients.

This document serves as the basis for HCD's fair housing planning work to expand housing choice and access to opportunity for all Californians, regardless of membership in a protected class. In preparing this report, HCD conducted extensive community outreach across the state with individuals and families, as well as with advocates, stakeholders, and groups representing persons in protected classes. HCD surveyed Californians on their housing needs and priorities in English, Spanish, Chinese, Vietnamese, Tagalog, and Korean languages. HCD held five public meetings in December 2019, across the state to gather local feedback on specific housing impediments and trends and conducted 10 topic-specific webinars. The Draft AI went out for a 45-day public comment period, beginning in April 2020. During the public comment period HCD held six regionally focused online meetings. This community input, along with significant data and research, informed this Final 2020 AI. The Final 2020 AI details impediments to fair housing choice and potential action steps to address those impediments over the next five years. The Final 2020 AI informs HCD's efforts to affirmatively further fair housing, to promote inclusive communities, further housing choice, and address community disparities through HCD's programs, policies, and operations. Some of these actions are within HCD's control, others will require on-going collaborative work with partners.

The Final 2020 AI describes the current fair housing environment in California, and then identifies impediments to fair housing choice and action steps to address those impediments. Chapter 2 outlines the extensive community engagement process that shaped the Final 2020 AI. The subsequent chapters assess fair housing in California through several lenses: a statewide overview of demographics and housing considerations (Chapter 3 and a regional analysis in Chapter 8), reviewing statewide regulations and laws (Chapter 4), discussing and describing actions that have been taken previously to affirmatively further fair housing (Chapter 7), segregation and integration (Chapter 5), the HCD/TCAC Opportunity Maps and efforts to increase access to opportunity (Chapter 6), performing an assisted housing portfolio analysis (Chapter 9) and a lending analysis (Chapter 10), an overview of fair housing complaints and cases (Chapter 11), and disaster recovery programs and the use of federal funds (Chapter 12).

Together, the chapters lay the framework for the identification of statewide impediments to fair housing choice, identified in Chapter 13, and the report concludes with recommendations in Chapter 14.

The following provides chapter-by-chapter summaries and key takeaways from the Final 2020 AI.

Chapter 1 – Executive Summary and Introduction

Chapter 1 provides a brief introduction of federal fair housing definitions, state-specific fair housing definitions, the process behind the drafting of the AI, and an overview of how this assessment fits into the State of California's wider vision for affirmatively furthering fair housing statewide. HCD produced this Final 2020 AI in conformance with the HUD requirements as stated in the Fair Housing Planning Guide as required by HUD. However, the AI also serves as the guiding document for HCD's fair housing efforts to expand housing choice, reduce segregation, and increase access to opportunity for all Californians, especially for those in protected classes. HCD worked to ensure that the full body of our goals and responsibilities are included. However, this document may not cover the full scope of HCD's ongoing fair housing work. While federal law provides significant guidance, HCD is also obligated to meet the mandates of California fair housing law, including AB 686. This important law reinforces California's commitment to fair and equal housing by requiring public agencies to administer their programs in a manner that affirmatively furthers fair housing and creates AFFH obligations for local government plans for housing. Advancing state fair housing goals will require HCD to continue to create opportunities for robust stakeholder participation, as established through the AI process.

Chapter 2 – Community Participation Process

Chapter 2 provides an overview of the community engagement and outreach efforts conducted in conjunction with this assessment. The chapter summarizes feedback from key stakeholder consultations, a series of fair housing webinars, public meetings, and the Community Needs Assessment Survey conducted as part of the AI process.

Key Takeaways:

- In total, over 1,000 individual stakeholders directly influenced the drafting of this assessment through the community engagement process.
- The Community Needs Assessment Survey, conducted from November 7, 2019, through January 15, 2020, and available online in English, Spanish, Chinese, Korean, Tagalog, and Vietnamese, received 828 responses.
- Stakeholder engagement in this assessment included proportionally distributed participation from stakeholders from each of California's eight identified regions.

Chapter 3 – Statewide Overview of Demographics, Economic, and Development Conditions

Chapter 3 presents background information and data to understand current conditions and trends impacting fair housing choice in the State of California. The chapter provides statewide demographic, economic, and housing profiles to review current and historical trends. The chapter also takes a closer look at housing conditions by income, race, ethnicity, and disability status.

Key Takeaways:

- California has an inadequate and vulnerable supply of affordable homes, disproportionately impacting persons in protected classes. Despite steady increases since the 2009 financial crisis, California’s rate of housing construction still falls below historic production. Between 1950 and 1990 California permitted an average of more than 200,000 homes annually, compared to just over 113,000 in 2018.
- California’s extremely limited affordable housing supply faces additional challenges as subsidy contracts or regulatory agreements expire and affordable units are converted to market rate.
- The rising cost of housing and the availability of affordable units remain key factors for constituents.
- Over 2 million households earning 30 percent or less of the Area Median Income (AMI) pay a third or more of their income toward housing in California; rising rents, low housing production, and stagnant wages only intensify these existing financial challenges, particularly for low- and extremely low-income families.
- Based upon the analysis of fair housing complaint data, race is the second most common basis cited for fair housing discrimination complaints, behind disability. As the racial and ethnic diversity of California’s population of residents continues to grow, it will be important to ensure that racial and ethnic disparities and inequity in housing are the focus in addressing fair housing choice.
- California has over 4 million Californians with disabilities, many of whom face extreme challenges finding housing that is affordable, accessible, and located near transit and supportive services.
- Nearly 75 percent of the state’s housing stock was built prior to 1990 and the enactment of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), the earliest federal mandate on accessible development. This means that the majority of California’s housing stock is likely inaccessible for people with disabilities.
- Lower-income households are more likely to include members with disabilities than higher-income households. Extremely low-income households are more than twice as likely to include an individual with a disability than households earning above moderate-income.

Chapter 4 – Review of State and Federal Level Laws, Regulations, and Programs

Chapter 4 presents an overview of federal and state laws, programs, policies, and plans which impact fair housing objectives in the State of California. The chapter provides an overview of state and federal legislative updates since the publication of HCD's 2012 AI. The chapter also summarizes the impact of other statewide policy efforts, such as building codes addressing accessibility, access to transportation, and social services, to further the state's fair housing goals and ensure adequate housing choice and access for protected classes in California.

Key Takeaways:

- Federal and state policies work closely in conjunction to ensure that state and federal fair housing protections are effective statewide.
- California's broad fair housing protections provided under state fair housing and civil rights laws, and supported by the state's planning and zoning laws, are key to addressing the needs of Californians who are members of protected classes.
- Fair housing education and enforcement play an important role in ensuring meaningful protection of California residents.
- Fair housing enforcement and limited resources to enforce existing laws remain a critical challenge in ensuring fair housing protections.

Chapter 5 – Segregation and Integration

Chapter 5 reviews data on current and historical segregation and integration patterns related to race, ethnicity, and poverty status in the State of California. The chapter relies on HUD-provided metrics on Racially and Ethnically Concentrated Areas of Poverty (RECAPs) to understand changes in segregation levels since 2012. The chapter also examines housing conditions for populations with Limited English Proficiency (LEP) and for communities from various national origins to understand potential segregation and integration patterns from those perspectives. Finally, the chapter explores the specific conditions and needs of rural communities to gauge the responsiveness of programs and services that are provided and integrated within those communities.

Key Takeaways:

- Recent demographic changes have increased concentrations of poverty in already concentrated areas of race, ethnicity, and poverty across the state.
- Historical patterns of segregation and exclusion continue to influence housing and development patterns statewide.
- California's rural communities face unique challenges, requiring a tailored approach to access to housing and community development.
- High levels of residential segregation are present in many communities, leading to conditions that exacerbate inequalities. Residential segregation leads to consequences, including increased concentrations of poverty and unequal access to jobs, education, and other services.

Chapter 6 – Access to Opportunity

Chapter 6 reviews and assesses access to opportunity in California, as defined by HUD and state access to opportunity metrics. The chapter presents levels of access to opportunity based on school proficiency, labor market engagement, proximity to jobs, quality and cost of transit and transportation, and overall environmental health using the data provided by HUD. The chapter also presents recent statewide efforts to measure and assess opportunity in California. Lastly, the chapter examines key data points that conceptualize access to opportunity in the context of housing quality, exposure to environmental hazards such as lead-based paint, broadband access, and displacement due to development patterns or evictions.

Key Takeaways:

- Households living below the Federal Poverty Level are less likely than the state population as a whole to live near high performing elementary schools.
- Housing policy has untapped potential to prevent further segregation and concentration of poverty, as well as improve long term economic mobility and health outcomes, especially for children.
- Patterns of displacement and concentration of poverty suggest that as low-income residents are being displaced from urban neighborhoods, increased concentrations of poverty are arising in traditionally suburban and rural areas.
- Stakeholders noted the connection between rising housing costs and evictions, displacement, and the homeless crisis that is occurring most dramatically in cities with the highest housing costs.

Chapter 7 – Review of Prior and Current Actions Taken to Affirmatively Further Fair Housing

Chapter 7 presents the previously identified impediments from the 2012 AI. The chapter also summarizes key actions taken to address the previously identified impediments and other key updates relevant to the work of HCD since 2012.

Key Takeaways:

- The impediments identified in 2012 continue to affect fair housing choice and access in the state. Stakeholders identified housing affordability, affordable housing supply, fair housing awareness and enforcement, local community pushback, land development standards, displacement and tenant protections, and inadequate access to greater community development opportunities as 2012 impediments that remain relevant for the 2020 AI.
- Since 2012, the State of California, through HCD and other agencies, has developed a comprehensive set of actions to continue to address the identified impediments.
- Actions taken since 2012 continue to change and adapt to meet the needs of protected classes and improve programming and services.

Chapter 8 – Regional Analysis

Chapter 8 provides a closer look at regional demographic and housing trends influencing fair housing choice and access at the local level. For example, the chapter describes Regional Housing Need Allocations, housing security, segregation patterns, and poverty rates based on the different regions of California. The regions include: Greater Los Angeles, San Francisco Bay Area, Sacramento, Northern California, San Diego, San Joaquin Valley, Central Coast, and Eastern Central California.

Key Takeaways:

- Every region is significantly behind on permits for its very low- and low-income housing production. For example, less than 2 percent of housing built in the Sacramento Region has been affordable to low- and very low-income households. In the San Joaquin Valley Region it is only 3 percent.
- Only 35 percent of Mono County’s residents are permanent. While tourism is an economic driver in the region, the amount of seasonally vacant homes puts pressure on the local market.
- Nearly half (48 percent) of the state's population of people living in RECAPs reside in the Greater Los Angeles Region, and there is a need to increase efforts to address the lasting legacy of segregation and exclusion impacting this region and the state as a whole.
- The San Joaquin Valley Region is one of the world's most productive agricultural areas, and many communities are growing due to the high housing costs in the San Francisco Bay Area and Greater Los Angeles Regions. Stakeholders expressed concern over land use and development patterns, including the intersection between industrial or agricultural facilities near affordable housing.
- The San Francisco Bay Area Region experienced an ongoing mismatch between population growth and housing production. Stakeholders expressed concern regarding the unmet needs of people experiencing homelessness in the region and displacement patterns that disproportionately impact low-income households and communities of color.

Chapter 9 – Federal Assisted Housing Program and Portfolio Analysis

Chapter 9 provides an analysis of the performance of HCD's federal programs portfolio. The chapter examines allocations, disbursements, and households or individuals assisted through the various programs. Whenever possible, the chapter compares the demographic profile of households or individuals served by the programs to the demographic profile of the targeted areas. Lastly, the chapter also attempts to review any potential programmatic roadblocks that may impact the access or delivery of the programs or services.

California Department of Housing and Community Development

Final 2020 Analysis of Impediments to Fair Housing Choice

Key Takeaways:

- Current federal programs are actively attempting to meet the needs of targeted areas in the delivery and funding of housing and services.
- It is too early to gauge whether recent state guideline changes are having any impact on the delivery of housing programs or services, such as for the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Program and other state programs.
- New programs, such as Community Development Block Grant-Disaster Recovery (CDBG-DR) and Housing for a Healthy California, provide new funding and programmatic tools to serve low-income households and protected classes.

Chapter 10 – Lending Analysis

Chapter 10 examines home lending patterns for borrowers in California to reveal any potential barriers in accessing fair lending and fair housing options in the state. To understand lending patterns, the chapter reviews loan originations, loan denials, and loan denial reasons based on race, ethnicity, income, and gender at the state and regional level.

Key Takeaways:

- As lending institutions shift away from government-backed loan products towards more conventional loans, low-income households and members of protected classes may face additional hurdles in securing capital for a home loan.
- Lack of access to home lending is not correlated to race or ethnicity, though gender and income may play a large role in home loan approval rates.
- Debt-to-income ratio and credit history are key factors in loan denials for all homebuyers in the State of California. Stakeholders noted that disparities in income, debt-to-income ratios, and credit history related to race and ethnicity may result in discriminatory effects to certain groups.

Chapter 11 – Fair Housing Trends and Complaints

Chapter 11 provides a close look at fair housing resources, activities, and complaints in the State of California. The chapter uses data provided by HUD's Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity (FHEO) and DFEH to analyze fair housing trends and emerging fair housing issues. As part of a comprehensive analysis of fair housing in the State of California, the chapter also examines other potential barriers, such as evictions and limited tenant protections, that may also influence fair housing trends and complaints in California.

Key Takeaways:

- Feedback from stakeholders indicates an ongoing need for additional assistance and resources to educate, investigate, and enforce fair housing complaints is key to ensuring that the state's fair housing and civil rights protections are accessible and effective for protected classes of Californians.

- From 2015 to 2019, the greatest number of fair housing complaints, as reported by DFEH and FHEO, were attributed to discrimination based upon disability, followed by discrimination based upon race, and then by discrimination based upon familial status.
- Further, with the highest number of alleged fair housing violations reported in California's major urban areas of Los Angeles, Sacramento, and San Francisco, ensuring that increased education, investigation, and enforcement activities are deployed to these communities will be important.

Chapter 12 – Disaster Recovery

Chapter 12 examines the growing link between hazard risk, disaster vulnerability, and fair housing. The chapter presents data from recent disaster relief plans and efforts to capture the need to look more closely at climate vulnerability as a potential barrier to fair housing access and choice in California.

Key Takeaways:

- Since the last Analysis of Impediments to Fair Housing Choice in 2012, California has experienced several record-breaking disasters, and the majority of the state has experienced at least one declared disaster, including drought, wildfires, flooding, mudflows, and debris flows.
- Destruction of community assets such as housing, infrastructure, and businesses impact all community members by limiting housing choice and access to economic opportunities; however, the impacts on vulnerable populations, including protected classes, can be catastrophic, especially for persons living in poverty or persons with a disability.
- As the State of California receives resources for recovery and mitigation efforts, the state has the opportunity to develop and administer programs and investments that benefit all members of a community, including vulnerable populations and protected classes.

The COVID-19 pandemic exacerbated existing needs and inequalities. The pandemic resulted in a substantial increase in demand for assistance through public services. Increased demand has left many service providers understaffed and under-resourced. There is a significant need to prevent homelessness and provide additional protections to keep people housed.

Chapter 13 – 2020 Impediments to Fair Housing Choice

Using the data and analysis presented throughout this assessment, Chapter 13 presents the current list of impediments to fair housing choice faced by residents of California. The chapter also presents recommendations and actions the State of California will undertake in the next five years to address and reduce the impact of the identified impediments on protected classes.

California Department of Housing and Community Development

Key Takeaways:

- Most themes, trends, and barriers identified in the 2012 AI continue to pose a threat to fair housing access for protected classes in California.
- Newly identified impediments related to homelessness and disabilities provide the State of California with an updated mandate to help residents affected by those issues.
- Recent years have provided many new tools to address fair housing choice, but actions are needed to ensure awareness and implementation of those new tools.

The AI process allows HCD to identify factors limiting housing choice and propose actions to mitigate impediments through proposed actions. To develop impediments for the Final 2020 AI, HCD evaluated the continuing relevance of the 2012 impediments, and considered the trends and observations seen through the chapters in this document, as well as new input received during consultations across the state. Stakeholder and community input collected during the development of the Final 2020 AI reaffirmed that many of the challenges and impediments identified in 2012 remain. HCD does not consider those past impediments to be resolved. However, based on new insights and input from stakeholders, some of the 2012 impediments have been revised to reflect current conditions across the state. To that end, HCD has identified 10 impediments to fair housing choice that it will strive to address during the next five years. The 2020 impediments, listed in summary form below, are expanded upon in Chapter 13. The AI identifies impediments to fair housing choice and actionable steps that can be taken to effect meaningful change for mitigating barriers to fair housing choice.

State of California 2020 Impediments to Fair Housing Choice:

- 1. Supply and Production of Affordable Homes: Inadequate supply and production of affordable homes available to low-income households and persons in protected classes.
- 2. Housing Preservation: Vulnerable supply of affordable housing stock threatens housing options for lower-income and protected households.
- 3. Housing Instability and Homelessness: Unequal access to supportive services, shelter, and affordable housing opportunities increases risk for persons experiencing homelessness, especially protected classes. The Coronavirus pandemic has exacerbated existing inequalities and vulnerabilities.
- 4. Fair Housing Education and Enforcement: Limited community awareness of fair housing protections and enforcement resources.

California Department of Housing and Community Development

- 5. Tenant Protections and Anti-Displacement: Lack of uniform enforcement and adequate anti-displacement protections have left protected classes, such as communities of color, more vulnerable to displacement.
- 6. Disparities in Housing Quality and Infrastructure: Low-income households, rural communities, and persons in protected classes, are disproportionately experiencing severe housing problems, a lack of adequate housing options, and disparities in infrastructure.
- 7. Climate and Environmental Vulnerabilities: Low-income households and protected classes are often disproportionately impacted by climate change, environmental injustice, or unsustainable land use and development practices.
- 8. Historic and Lasting Impact of Segregation: Despite the repeal of explicitly racist and discriminatory housing laws, there remains a lasting legacy of segregation and resources disparities. Housing choice is often limited for persons of protected classes, including communities of color, to segregated concentrated areas of poverty.
- 9. Local Resistance and Exclusionary Land Use Policies Constrain Access to Opportunity: Denying, preventing, or rendering infeasible multifamily housing development, alternative housing strategies, and affordable housing limits access for low-income households, protected classes, and persons experiencing homelessness.
- 10. Insufficient Accessible Housing Stock: Lack of adequate accessible housing options, specifically for persons with mobility and sensory disabilities, limits housing choice for low-income households and people with disabilities.

Chapter 13: Impediments to Fair Housing Choice

HCD produced the Final 2020 AI as required by HUD for all CPD funding recipients. This analysis serves as the foundation for HCD and the state's fair housing planning work, to expand housing choice and access to opportunity for all Californians, with a focus on members of protected classes. The Final 2020 AI details impediments to fair housing choice and action steps to address those impediments over the next five years.

To effectively combat housing discrimination and affirmatively further fair housing, HCD has identified a multi-pronged approach that includes recommendations and action steps to address the 10 impediments to fair housing choice identified through the 2020 AI process. The recommendations and action steps will inform HCD's efforts to affirmatively further fair housing; to promote inclusive communities, further housing choice, and address community disparities through HCD's programs, policies, and operations. HCD's AFFH efforts will also follow guidance from state fair housing law, including AB 686 (2018). Some of these actions are within HCD's authority, while others will require on-going, collaborative work with state and local entities.

*Note: Actions with an asterisk address more than one impediment to fair housing choice.

1. Impediment #1: Supply and Production of Affordable Homes

Inadequate supply and production of affordable homes available to lower-income households and persons in protected classes.

Recommendations and Action Steps:

- Maintain and expand resources available for the production and preservation of rental housing for households earning less than 30 percent AMI. *
- Maintain and expand technical assistance on state laws and strategies that promote zoning for a variety of housing types, including multifamily housing, low-barrier navigation centers, group homes, supportive housing, and accessible units affordable to lower-income households.
- Develop and deliver technical assistance on recently enhanced statutory requirements related to planning and zoning for affordable homes, including broad sixth cycle housing element support and specific guidance on AB 686, SB 330, SB 35, AB 2162, AB 1397, and SB 166.
- Identify state surplus and excess local public land suitable for housing development, connect available land with affordable housing developers (AB 1486 and Executive Order N-06-19).
- Explore potential to move to guideline authority on the Emergency Solutions Grant Program, the HOME Program and other HCD funding programs to provide staff with flexibility to integrate evidence-based solutions and respond to evolving housing needs and policy priorities.

- Encourage housing supply strategies that implement state and local government requirements to Affirmatively Further Fair Housing under AB 686.
- Encourage greater community engagement in local governments adoption of housing elements, particularly the identification of sites for the housing element. Increase technical assistance and depth of review related to housing element sites to confirm sites are affirmatively furthering fair housing and meet other legal mandates (under AB 1397 and AB 686) for projected income levels.*

2. Impediment #2: Housing Preservation

Vulnerable supply of affordable homes threatens housing options for lower-income households and persons in protected classes.

Recommendations and Action Steps:

- Maintain and expand resources available for the production and preservation of subsidized rental housing for households earning less than 30 percent AMI. *
- Help to preserve Naturally Occurring Affordable Housing, such as mobilehome parks.
- Support the conversion of hotel/motel/other non-housing to affordable housing.
- Support Preservation Notice law (AB 1521 and Government Code Sections 65863.10, 65863.11, and 65863.13) by providing technical assistance to owners, residents, affected public entities, and qualified entities interested in preservation purchases. Continue notifying owners of non-compliant preservation notices and providing technical assistance to support preservation transactions.
- Convene a task force of state housing entities to review and align asset management and monitoring requirements to simplify reporting requirements and ensure sponsors are aware of and following preservation noticing requirements.
- Continue expanding the Affordable Housing Preservation Database with additional local and state data to identify affordable properties that are at risk and should be targeted for preservation.
- Evaluate opportunities within HCD's funding and planning programs to increase incentives for the preservation of at-risk affordable housing.

3. Impediment #3: Housing Instability and Homelessness

Unequal access to supportive services, shelter, and affordable housing opportunities increases housing instability and risk of homelessness for protected classes. The Coronavirus pandemic has exacerbated existing inequalities and vulnerabilities.

Recommendations and Action Steps:

- Continue statewide response to the novel Coronavirus, including protections from evictions, housing solutions for those experiencing homelessness, and prevention of further foreclosure and evictions as at-risk households navigate economic recovery, transitioning to permanent housing, and generally support post-pandemic community and economic recovery.
- Through Project Homekey, HCD will administer funds to preserve and acquire homes that can be used as permanent and affordable housing.
- Support efforts of the California Homeless Coordinating and Financing Council to develop a Homeless Data Integration System. This database will be utilized to make data-driven policy decisions aimed at preventing and ending homelessness.
- Provide technical assistance on AB 2162, which requires supportive housing developments, that meet certain criteria, to be allowed by-right.
- Prevent cycles of homelessness from the beginning by encouraging creation of local emergency housing funds that support a variety of rental subsidies and assistance to households at risk of eviction or losing their home due to temporary financial shocks.
- Encourage local and regional governments to identify emergency shelter sites for unhoused persons, particularly during extreme weather conditions and other disaster and emergency situations.
- Amplify the California Department of Fair Employment and Housing's education efforts on new fair housing protections for persons experiencing homelessness, including acceptance of assistance animals and equal access for LGBTQIA+ persons.
- Encourage Continuums of Care and service providers to allow people with disabilities who decline to share detailed personal or medical information to still have access to local Coordinated Entry Systems.
- Explore various data strategy options to monitor evictions.

4. Impediment #4: Fair Housing Education and Enforcement

Limited community awareness of fair housing protections and enforcement resources.

Recommendations and Action Steps:

- Amplify the California Department of Fair Employment and Housing’s education efforts on their new fair housing regulations.
- In partnership with DFEH, provide HCD program and policy staff, and project sponsors, with fair housing training, including equity, implicit bias, tenant selection best practices, and accessibility requirements and best practices.
- Develop a working group across housing agencies to provide aligned tenant selection guidance to program users in light of DFEH’s new regulations and trainings on source of income, reasonable accommodations, harassment, retaliation, criminal background, use of masked eviction records, protections for survivors of domestic violence, language access issues, immigration status (including undocumented persons) and equitable tenant selection strategies to prevent disparate impact on protected classes.
- Explore developing a formal process for state housing entities to handle complaints related to fair housing laws and VAWA protections.
- Analyze the state’s affordable housing portfolio and protected class membership of persons living in affordable housing.
- Ensure that state housing programs provide meaningful access to persons with Limited English Proficiency. Review HCD’s language access plan, be more deliberate with making multilingual and accessible communications available.
- Encourage AFFH, implicit bias, and accessibility trainings for local building inspectors and code enforcement.
- Support the increase of fair housing testing to identify housing discrimination.
- Continue to collaborate with other state agencies on outreach efforts to homebuyers and homeowners to discuss fair lending issues.

Impediment #5: Tenant Protections and Anti-Displacement

Lack of uniform enforcement and adequate anti-displacement protections have left protected classes more vulnerable to displacement.

Recommendations and Action Steps:

- Support efforts to provide sustainable, ongoing legal assistance to California renters and homeowners facing eviction through local nonprofit organizations (SB 113).

- Review due process protections, including hearing and grievance procedures, for entities participating in state housing programs. Seek to provide due process protections before terminating services or tenancy.

Impediment #6: Disparities in Housing Quality and Infrastructure

Lower-income households, rural communities, and persons in protected classes, are disproportionately experiencing severe housing problems, a lack of adequate housing options, and disparities in infrastructure.

Recommendations and Action Steps:

- Develop partnerships with and provide technical assistance to other state department and community development entities responsible for non-housing community investments (schools, economic development, parks and gardens, public health programming, climate adaptation, etc.) and infrastructure (water, transit, public utilities, internet, etc.) on their Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing obligations and need for investments in under resourced communities.*
- Promote place-based investments in areas that have experienced historical inequity and under investment, including rural communities with infrastructure disparities, segregated concentrated areas of poverty, and communities of color that have experienced historic disinvestment. *

- Explore potential expansion of eligible uses for the Mobilehome Park Rehabilitation and Resident Ownership Program to address code violations, accessibility, and habitability issues.
- Seek to conduct mobilehome park code enforcement to benefit residents, while complying with state laws.
- Any mobilehome code enforcement efforts need to include considerations of tenant safety, as well as potential displacement.
- Explore potential mobilehome relocation benefits and opportunities to safely and inexpensively upgrade and legalize illegal units.
- Analyze potential benefits of rental inspection programs and remediation funds as tools to facilitate habitability in the rental housing stock and prevent displacement.

Impediment #7: Climate and Environmental Vulnerabilities

Lower-income households and protected classes are often disproportionately impacted by climate change, environmental injustice, or unsustainable land use and development practices.

Recommendations and Action Steps:

- Develop partnerships with and provide technical assistance to other state department and community development entities responsible for non-housing community investments (schools, economic development, parks and gardens, public health programming, climate adaptation, etc.) and infrastructure (water, transit, public utilities, internet, etc.) on their Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing obligations and need for investments in under resourced communities.*
- Promote affordable and accessible housing opportunities in communities with greater resources, functioning infrastructure, less pollution exposure, climate change mitigation policies, access to transit and active transportation mobility choices such as walking and biking, jobs, high-performing schools, open space, and other community needs linked to long term positive outcomes for residents.*
- Encourage cross sector collaborations on program guideline development and grant reviews. Incorporate housing, equity, and affirmatively furthering fair housing principles throughout transportation, climate, adaptation, energy, natural resource, and sustainability programs.
- Explore adding adoption or update of Environment Justice plans as an eligible use in planning grant programs.
- Explore cost and benefits of low interest loan programs to make housing more climate resilient.

Impediment #8: Historic and Lasting Impact of Segregation

Despite the repeal of explicitly racist and discriminatory housing laws, there remains a lasting legacy of segregation and resource disparities. Housing choice is often limited for persons of protected classes, including communities of color, to segregated concentrated areas of poverty.

Recommendations and Action Steps:

- Develop partnerships with and provide technical assistance to other state department and community development entities responsible for non-housing community investments (schools, economic development, parks and gardens, public health programming, climate adaptation, etc.) and infrastructure (water, transit, public utilities, internet, etc.) on their Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing obligations and need for investments in under resourced communities.*
- Promote place-based investments in areas that have experienced historical inequity and under investment, including rural communities with infrastructure disparities, segregated concentrated areas of poverty, and communities of color that have experienced historic disinvestment. *
- Research and lift up best practices for community investment without displacement.
- Utilize AB 72 enforcement authority as a strategy to ensure compliance with state affordable housing laws.
- Recognize where jurisdictions act to perpetuate existing patterns of segregation, refer to DFEH.
- Utilize HCD's racial equity plan, developed in cooperation with the Government Alliance for Racial Equity (GARE), to fully integrate racial equity into all of HCD's practices, policies, and programs.

Impediment #9: Local Resistance and Exclusionary Land Use Policies Constrain Access to Opportunity

Denying, preventing, or rendering infeasible multifamily housing development, alternative housing strategies, and affordable housing limits access for lower-income households, protected classes, and persons experiencing homelessness.

Recommendations and Action Steps:

- Continue to analyze HCD's funding programs to assess, review, and seek opportunities to more affirmatively further fair housing. Partner with other agencies, such as California Housing Finance Agency, Tax Credit Allocation Committee, and California Debt Limit Allocation Committee to share lessons learned and support them in completing similar analysis.
- Promote affordable and accessible housing opportunities in communities with greater resources, functioning infrastructure, less pollution exposure, climate change mitigation policies, access to transit and active transportation mobility choices such as walking and biking, jobs, high-performing schools, open space, and other community needs linked to long term positive outcomes for residents.*

- Continue partnership with councils of government to improve Regional Housing Need Allocations (RHNA) under AB 1771, which requires RHNA to further all five statutory objectives including: 1) increasing housing supply and a mix of housing types, tenure, and affordability in an equitable manner, 2) promoting infill development and socioeconomic equity, protecting environmental and agricultural resources, and encouraging efficient development patterns, 3) promoting jobs-housing fit, 4) balancing disproportionate household income distributions, and 5) affirmatively further fair housing.
- Encourage greater community engagement in the housing element, particularly the identification of sites for the housing element. Increase technical assistance and depth of review related to housing element sites to confirm sites are affirmatively furthering fair housing and meet other legal mandates (under AB 1397 and AB 686) for projected income levels.*
- Conduct statewide training on the requirements of AB 686.
- In partnership with DFEH and HUD, continue to provide guidance and, as necessary, accountability and enforcement, on the fair housing implications of local ordinances, zoning requirements, building codes, and development standards.
- Continue to enforce Housing Element Law, the Housing Accountability Act, Density Bonus Law, and other laws to discourage local land use policies and implementation from acting as barriers to housing opportunities for lower-income residents and protected classes.
- Explore the creation of an anonymous complaint mechanism for parties reporting potential housing law violations under AB 72 in order to protect complainants from potential retaliation.
- Promote education and additional research on how restrictions on multifamily housing, such as limited multifamily zoning, and height and density limitations, impact inclusive communities.
- Explore opportunities to use small area Fair Market Rents or updated market studies to provide voucher holders access to higher rent areas and increase voucher utilization rates.

Impediment #10: Insufficient Accessible Housing Stock

Lack of adequate accessible housing options, compared to the need, limits housing choice for people with disabilities.

Recommendations and Action Steps:

- Revise HCD regulations and guidance for all programs to clarify the legally required accessibility requirements in HCD funded activities.
- Improve compliance with state and federal building codes related to the number of accessible units in HCD funded activities through monitoring and technical assistance.
- Partner with Public Housing Authorities and other subsidized housing providers to provide trainings on reasonable accommodations for people with disabilities.
- Evaluate HCD's programs to assist persons transitioning from institutional settings to community-based settings.
- Partner with DFEH to provide trainings to entities participating in state housing programs on reasonable accommodations and modifications.
- Further integrated housing options for persons with disabilities. Require accessible units to be distributed throughout projects and sites (to the maximum extent feasible) and available in a range of sizes and amenities.*
- Research and lift up strategies to increase the utilization of accessible units by individuals with disabilities who need the accessibility features of the units.
- Analyze programs and eligible expenses, seek to allow, where possible, accessibility modifications as an eligible expense.
- Evaluate and develop a plan to increase the percentage of mobility and sensory accessible units across state housing programs (from 2 percent and 5 percent to 4 percent and 10 percent) in new construction developments.
